THE AMERICAN PRESIDENCY.

HE periodical election of the American President is now almost the only remaining instance of the elective principle applied to creating the head of a state. It has been abandoned by the Monarchies of Europe, but it flourishes in the Republic of the Western World. If it is found to work well and tends to promote the strength, peace, and unity of the States, we hope it will long continue to be the main and vital principle of the Constitution. But in the Europe of former ages, the election by the people of its head or chief, produced disputes, hatreds, division—then the weakness consequent upon them, and slavery last of all-for a weak nation never long remains a free one. Poland was an elective Monarchy long after all the other states of Europe had allowed their Kings to become such in virtue of their birth—a thing that could not be disputed,-rather than for the claims afforded by their virtues, talents, or wealth; in all which, let a man be as wealthy, as virtuouss and as talented as he may, he will find others ready to dispute the choice with him on the same grounds, either as to one quality or even all. It may seem irrational enough that men should prefer to have their rulers determined by accident rather than by their fitness for the office. But this very fitness is the most difficult thing to get generally acknowledged; and the controversies created by the freedom of choice, work more harm in a State than even the bad qualities of a ruler by right of birth. Nearly every existing Monarchy has its definite laws and constitutional forms, which prevent the power of the ruler going too far for the safety of the people. If those safeguards are broken, and the compact violated, the people can exercise another kind of privilege—that of deposing, as they have often and very effectively proved. Such Monarchies as that of Russia are fortunately not universal; nor does the complete despotic power of the Emperor there arise from his succeeding to his throne by hereditary title—not by the choice of a popular suffrage. Victoria wears the crown of England as much by right of birth as Nicholas; but in all else how different is their power! We know our American friends are inclined to pride themselves considerably on their political liberty to a degree not altogether reasonable; many of them believe that no liberty can exist under any Constitution that differs in form from their own. They prize their periodical election of a President as a sort of constantly-recurring triumph of the democratic principle. They are at present in the midst of a contest for that office; and much excitement is a consequence. The name of England is mixed up with it; a suspicion of a greater or less bias towards England will probably do much to turn the scale one way or other. We will therefore take the opportunity, while giving a full and fair account of both parties and their proceedings, to say a few words in vindication of that quiet and settled principle, which, leaving the highest office of the State hereditary, gives a fixed centre from which all the governing powers proceed. This is one advantage; but a far greater one is the absence of all that fever of excitement—that almost madness of party spirit—which in America hardly ever ceases. The strife during which one President is elected is hardly over before it begins on the prospect of the election of another.

As long as the United States continue to be the great preponderating political power of the Western Continent, there may be less danger in these contests; but if time and circumstance divide them—and it is not impossible—into two rival powers, the elective principle will break down. If the Republic were at the present moment the near neighbour of a strong and wealthy Monarchy, she would not preserve her independence; her divisions would ruin her. Poland is the last kingdom in Europe that preserved an elective Monarchy—and it destroyed her; of all nations she is, at this moment, the most completely and cruelly enslaved. Venice was a Republic with an elected head, and thoughthe Doges were chosen for life, and that by the nobles only—not the people—a Monarchy has absorbed it. Nearly every Republic has ended by becoming a Monarchy; only once in modern history has a Monarchy become a Republic, and a few brief years saw it trodden beneath the hoof of a military despotism—of all forms of Government, the worst Government the worst.

While the Americans, then, are mustering their strength for the While the Americans, then, are mustering their strength for the elective battle, in monster meetings, processions en masse, speeches, shoutings, canvassings, with much that is stirring, much that is picturesque, perhaps, but more that is mischievous—let them not imagine that all political liberty is enshrined in the Constitution of which they are so often, and sometimes, we must add, so inordinately proud: there is, at least, something to be said on the other side of the question.

The rival candidates for the office are Mr. Polk and Mr. Clay; we have given portraits of both of them, and a sketch of a "Procession" in New York.

APPROACHING ELECTION OF THE AMERICAN PRESIDENT.

We have just received the annexed interesting sketches from our correspondent at New York; they are accompanied by the following important details:—

The great political contest for the ascendancy between the two powerful parties of Whig and Democratic in the United States, is now (Nov. 1) near at hand; and these respective juntas are marshalling their forces, discussing the broad principles of their doctrine and political faith, exciting the multitude by cannon-fifting, song-singing, soul-stirring music, processions, harangues, &c. Collateral questions seem to be merged in the chief subjects of protective tarift, or free trade; United States Bank, or no bank; Texas with the Union, or the Union without Texas; equal distribution of the land funds, according to the ratio of the population of each state, or no distribution, &c.

With the last few years, another question, too, has agroup up, which has given thin the last few years, another question, too, has agroup up, which has given the according to the ratio of the United States provides that a foreigner shall have been seven year in the country before he becomes a voter, and shall have gone through the regular forms of naturalization. It also stipulates that a native born citizen shall have arrived at the age of twenty-one years, before he be slowed the privileges of citizonship and the right of suffrage. These stipulations are separate and exclusive of provisions of respective states, where a property quification is necessary. This has been a question of serious meditation among all classes, whether a foreigner should attain his citizenship and the right of suffrage one years, in the United States, before he because a voter of except quification is necessary. The same provided the propose of the country.

This party is now becoming very po

Mr. Polk's talents are respectable. His private character is spotless, his deteamour courteous, but manly, and his impulses generous. His predilections

HENRY CLAY is the Whig candidate for President. He is a native of Hanover countr, Virginia, and at present a citizen of Kentucky. He was born on the 12th April. 1777. His father was a Baptist clergyman. Mr. Clay first became distinguished as a criminal pleader in Lexington, Kentucky, where he practiced at the bar. He was engaged in the celebrated trial of Aaron Burr, when arrested in Kentucky, for high treason. He was chosen a member of the Kentucky Legislature; and in 1806, he took his seat in the Senate of the United States, to serve the fraction of a term occanioned by the resignation of Hon. John Adair. Retiring from the United States Senate, he was again chosen to the Legislature of Kentucky. In 1810, he took his seat a second time in the Senate. He opposed the renewal of the charter of the United States Bank. He was in avour of the War with Great Britain. He was chosen a member and afterwards Speaker of the House of Representatives. In 1813 hewas appointed one of the commissioners to Ghent, to arrange a treaty of peace with Great Britain. Returning home in 1811, in 1824, he made his great speech in favour of American industry. This year he was the candidate of his party for President of the United States. Messrs. Jackson, Adams, and Crawford were the highest candidates, but neither having a plurality of votes, the choice devolved on the House of Representatives, of which Mr. Clay was a member. Mr. Clay and his friends turned the balance in favour of Mr. Adams, and he was elected. Mr. Clay was immediately appointed Secretary of State by Mr. Adams, which office he accepted. This circumstance gave rise to a charge of bargain and corruption on the part of Mr. Clay, which,

In 1831, in the administration of President Jackson, he was again sent to the Senate of the United States. The same year he was nominated by the National Republican Convention again for President of the United States, and was defeated by General Jackson; was re-elected to the Senate in 1835, and was surceeded, in 1842, by Mr. Critenden.

cabins were erected by his party throughout the country, where they congregated in mass meetings, sung Whig songs. and drank hard cyder; coon skins were fastened upon the doors and walls, all of which were symbols of their candidate's plain and unostentatious mode of living—for he lived in a log house, in a new country; occasionally went 'acoon hunting; and hard cyder was his principal beverage. This may be said to be the commencement of song singing at political meetings, which is now adopted by both and all parties, and puts us in mind of the Jacobite times in Scotland.

Mass processions are now becoming very popular. On the eve of an election, and for months previous there has been a continued series of marching and countermarching throughout the country; gun-firing, drum-beating, horn-blowing, and a waving of banners, and the whole Republic seems slive and under arms.

Our engraving is a correct representation of a Whig procession in New York, drawn by J. Kobb. The procession was headed with a cavalcade bearing banners with various devices. Then came carriages and waggons, with implements representing the mechanic arts, which were followed by a body of men and boys, some carrying flags and banners, and the whole under the direction of a chief marshal and assistants. The view is taken from the corner of Chamber-street and Broadway.

FORBIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARISIANA.

(From our own Correspondent.)
PARIS, Wednesday.

Paris, Wednesday.

The spirit of hostility towards England appears much assuaged in Paris. The spirit of amily has been singularly marked as regards the English plays, whose performances, sithough resisted by some narrow-minded lessees, have received the cordial fiat of the public as well as the Government. Still some vapour and smoke will every now and then arise from the old crater of Anglomania. One of these eruptions has amused, beyond measure, the English residents in Paris. Barthelemy, the satirical poet, writes a weekly feuilleton in verse in the Sicole. Of his last lucubration the perfide Albion is his devoted quarry—and in his attack he commits the most irresistible mistakes on the subject of our language and habits—for example, take these three lines:—

"Les shame et les shoking échappent de leurs bouches,"

"Le chaste Polisman condamne sans appel"

"A cinq livres aterlings un peché veniel,"

Our fashionable salons are preparing to give a brilliant reception to the num-

The Paris papers do not contain any intelligence of importance. The Chambers are to meet on the 26th of December, until which time, probably, there will be some stagnation in the political world.

vocate-General, in a long speech, accused the captain of gross negligence, and called on the Court to declare him guilty, and to dismiss him from the navy. After a very able defence by Captain Baudin, the President, in the name of the Court, declared that the Court was unanimously of opinion that the accused did not lose the vessel wilfully, but that the Court was divided on the question, whether it had been lost from neglect and want of experience, four members being for the affirmative, and four for the negative. The law requiring that an accused can be declared guilty only by a majority, Captain Besson was acquitted.

The Moniteur contains a Royal ordinance, authorising the Minister for Foreign Affairs to open, in his department, acredit of 115,000f. for unforeseen expenses. Tae pupils of the Polytechnic School at present in Paris, between 60 and 80 in number, assembled on Sunday to consider the line of conduct they should pursue in the situation in which they had been placed by the Government. They pledged their words of honour, two months ago, to partake of the fate of, and to remain stanch to each other, all being culpable or innocent in the same degree. After some discussion, as the time for opening the school had not yet arrived, they drew up an address to the King, expressing to his Majesty the painful situation in which they had been placed by the Government—fearing, on the ore hand, to pass for rebels, and bound, on the other, by an engagement of honour not to allow a few to be sacrificed for the fault of all.

SPAIN.

Our Spanish news this week records the progress of insurrection in the Peninsula. There has been a serious outbreak at Logrono, in the province of Old Castile, at the head of which the celebrated Martin Zurbano has placed himself. The 12th was General Zurbano's jour de fête, and he celebrated it by proclaiming the Constitution of 1837 in its integrity. To the cry of "Viva la Constitution de 1837," was added the cry of "Viva Isabella II., and death to the tyrants." Zurbano was at the head of 400 men, and was hourly gaining additional followers. He marched from Logrono to Najara, a town of 7000 inhabitants, where he met with no opposition, and was directing his steps towards Burgos. The part of the country where this insurrection has broken out has been the focus of several insurrections, both Liberal and Carlist. In the neighbouring towns of Cenirao, Azo, and Burgos, there are thousands who are disaffected to the present Government, and only wait for an opportunity of rising.

There is reason to believe that this insurrection has various ramifications throughout the country, and fresh outbreaks are expected in various places. The hingdom of Old Castile, as well as the neighbouring provinces, is described as being in a state of the greatest excitement.

From Madrid our letters are to the 13th instant. The Chamber of Deputies was still occupied with the proposed reforms of the Constitution. The Opposition is quite unable to carry any amendments to the bill.

Letters from Barcelona announce that Prim and his co-accused are still confined in the tower of the barreack of the Body Guards, to which several persons arrested in the provinces, as his accomplices, had been likewise removed. Prim, who had been allowed to communicate with his friends, continued to protest his innocence, and loudly vowed vengeance against General Narvaez and the Political Chief of Madrid. It was rep the recognition of Isabella by the Courts of Vienna and Rome will immediately follow.

PORTUGAL.

Our private correspondence from Lisbon to the 14th, records the continued triumph of Costa Cabral. Not only did his Cabinet obtain a majority in the Chamber of Peers of 37 votes against 12 on the question "of the use made of the extraordinary powers conferred on Government for the suppression of the revolt;" but there seems every probability that the Ministers will be successful on the question of the Bill of Indemnity for the unconstitutional acts performed by the Government after the cessation of the discretionary powers. Towards the close of the debates which have taken place on the subject, Costa Cabral made a long speech, in which he not only justified himself and his colleagues for all they had done, but went a step further, and showed, by the production of documentary evidence, that Count Lavradio, and others of his political opponents, uad, upon the same plea of necessity, committed much greater infractions of the charter, or rather had made a much more free and extensive use of the discretionary powers with which they had been invested, when they were in power, in 1820, on the occasion of the Marquis of Chaves' revolt for the restoration of Absolutism, and in 1841, when the question of the nevigation of the river Douro was on the point of bringing about a rupture with Spain.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

We have received Cape of Good Hope papers to the 15th of September. The accounts from the eastern frontiers are much more favourable than those last received, the placing of the military detachments at intervals on the neutral around having evidently produced a beneficial result. Four Caffres implicated in the murder of Mr. de Lange, the Dutch boor, had been delivered up by the chief of their tribe, to be dealt with by the Colonial tribunals, and sixty head of cattle had, at the same time, heen restored to the widow. The rains had been copious, and the weather in every respect favourable for the crops, and securing the season's clip of wool. The Governor had received the patent for erectity Natal into a separate province, with a Licutenant Governor, but subordinate to the Central Government of the Cape, and subject to the same laws, &c. The Licutenant Governor to be assisted by an executive council of ive members, and a Recorder was to be the head of the judicial establishment, from whose court there will be a right of appeal to the supreme tribunal at Cape Town. The temporary laws in force in Natal were to be abolished, from whatever authority they had emanated. The road from Graham's Town to Cape Town was a 'avourite project with the inhabitants, and had greatly enhanced the value of the land situated in the districts through which it was to pass.

UNITED STATES.

The packet ship Oxford has arrived at Liverpool, with accounts from New York one day later than those received last week by the Acadia. The Presidential election was the only subject of importance discussed by the papers. The chance of Mr. Clay's return was said to be improved. W. Peters, Esq., her Britannic Majesty's Consul to Philadelphia, was robbed of his wallet, containing two hundred dollars, on the 30th ult., at the Harrisburg Railroad dept. He had just returned from Ohio with a newly-married wife. There is a good deal of business doing in railway shares. The New York Stock Market was flat, and prices rather lower than by the quotations received by the steamer. The rate of exchange had not varied.

Later accounts have been received from the Society Islands, by way of the United States, from which it appears that there has been another battle between the French and the natives, in which a great number of the latter have been butchered by their well-armed and well disciplined assailants. Louis Philippe's new officer of the Legion of Honour, Captain Bruat, is, we suppose, the hero of this new slaughter. The Fishguard English frigate has conveyed Queen Pomare to the island of Bolabla.

According to a Paris paper, intelligence from Papatit to the 6th June had been received, through the United States. The most perfect tranquility reigned there; the garrison was hard at work at the fortifications of the town. The insurgents had not laid down their arms, but, under the terror inspired by the affair of Mahahens, they dared not take a step out of their entrenhments.

A letter from Rio Janeiro, of the 12th of September, announces the arrivathere of Admiral Hamelin, in the Virginie frigate, and states that he was almost immediately to proceed to Tahiti.

The West Indies.

The West Indies and Packet the Clyde has arrived with mails from the West Indies. She sailed from St. Jago de Cuba, October 19th; Jamaica, 24th; Demerara, 20th; Trinidad, 21st; Barbadoes, 24th; Grenada, 26 h; St. Thomas, 31st; and Fayal, 12th November. The Clyde brings home 13 passengers, and on freight 1620 dollars, £18 British money, 75 ounces gold dust, 699 ounces silver, 399 ounces platina.

It appears that the season throughout the West Indies has been unusually hot, causing great sickness and mortality. Demerara was particularly unhealthy, typhus and scarlet fever raging, in addition to the indigenous fever of the colony. The Jamaica House of Assembly was opened by the Earl of Elgin on the 15th October. The Hill Coolie proposition was brought forward in a very full house, and, after a lengthened discussion, was carried: the number, however, being limited to 2000, instead of 5000, as proposed by the home Government. A dreaful fire occurred on the Canal Coffee Plantations, near Demerara, on the 14th of October, and was burning on the 26th, whereoy nearly the whole of that valuable district would be destroyed. The plantations were fired by the peasantry, in consequence of a tax on the sale of plantation shaving been recently exacted by the collector of the district.

The Georgetown Royal Gazette contains accounts of other incendiary fires in Demerars.

The Jamaica Times contains an important piece of news indicative of the determination to discourage slavery in Cuba. That paper says:—'By late advices from Havannah, we have the gratifying intelligence that the Captain General has issued a proclamation, notifying that 'on and after the 1st of January next, all vessels, under whatever flag, arriving at any of the ports of Cuba, with slaves, will be confiscated.' By all accounts, both from Cuba and the old country, never was the Captain-General in greater favour than he is at present; while the promptitude with which he put down the late attempt at insurrection has been made the theme of praise among men of all parties.''

A dreadful accident has happened at Turnhout (Belgium) at the funeral of M. de Nef, deputy of that district. As the funeral was to be with all the honours due to his rank, a great number of persons were attracted to it; among these were fifty who stationed themselves in a gallery, built on the outside of a neighbouring windmill. This gallery not being constructed to support so great a weight, suddenly gave way, and the whole were precipitated to the ground from a height of thirty feet. Four persons are already dead, above twenty others have received very serious injuries, many having their legs or arms broken, and it is feared that several of them will not recover

THE CLAIMANT AGAINST LOUIS PHILIPPE.—At Bow street, on Tuesday, the Frenchman Buchoz Hilton, whose alleged claims against Louis Philippe have several times been brought before the public, applied to Mr. Jardine for leave to post a number of large placards he held in his hand at different places through town. They were printed in the French and English languages, setting forth that the King of the French was indebted to him to the amount of several thousands of pounds. for the expenses he had incurred during the revolution in supporting two regiments to establish the King on the throne, and entreating of the Queen to mediate with his Majesty for the settlement of the aleged debt.—Mr. Jardine, having glanced over the contents of the papers, said he could perceive nothing illegal in them to prevent them being published, provided the applicant could obtain the permission of persons to have them affixed to their premises.—The applicant appeared gratified at the intelligence, and thanked the magistrate.

VIOLATION OF THE LIBERTY OF THE SUBJECT.—At the Thames Police-office on Tuesday Mr. George Walton, a respectable plumber and gas-fitter, of No. 5, George-terrace, Commercial-road. Stepney, and George Scallock, a lad in his employ were brought before Mr. Broderip, on a charge of stealing one of Defriez' patent dry gas meters, value £7, stated in the police sheet to be the property of William Cormack, of the firm of Banks and Cormack, gas purifiers, of Church-row, Lime-house. Mr. Walton, who was much agitated, said, that a

Defriez' patent dry gas meters, value £7, stated in the police sheet to be the property of William Cormack, of the firm of Banks and Cormack, gas purifiers, of Church-row, Lime-house. Mr. Walton, who was much agitated, said, that a rew days ago he entered into an agreement with Banks and Cormack, toft up a gas apparaus for them, and after the job was commenced Mr. Cormack requested the loan of a meter which he kept in his shop, for the purpose of trying some experiments on a gasometer the firm had lately erected. He agreed to lend them a patent dry meter, on their promising to take particular care of it, and conveyed it to their premises. Having done work and furnished materials to the amount of £15, and knowing very little of the firm or their resources, he walted upon Mr. Cormack that morning, and asked him for an advance of money. Mr. Cormack refused to advance anything, and he would not proceed with the work till he received an advance of £5, and Mr. Cormack immediately directed his foreman to proceed to the nearest gas-fitter's, and bring him to the premises to complete the fitting-up of the apparatus. He then said he should take home his gas meter, and took it up and gave it to his boy. Mr. Cormack immediately sent for a policeman, and gave him into custody for stealing his own property,—Mr. Broderip: Then you are in custody for merely taking away your own property, which Mr. Cormack refused to give up?—Mr. Walton: Yes, Sir; I lent it to the firm of Banks and Cormack for a day or two. It is my property, and there are persons in court to prove it. I have had the mortification of being taken through the streets as a felon, pointed at by my neighbours, and followed by a crowd of persons, to many of whom I was known, in open day. It is too bad, Sir.—Mr. Broderip: Too bad! it is indeed. (To the policeman) You should not have taken these parties into custody at all. You should not have arrested a man for stealing his own property, under such circums ances. What time did you apprehend them?—Policeman: About 11.—

of the division. It has happened before, and must not be repeated. The liberty of the subject is not to be trifled with in this manner. Every person engaged in the detention of Mr. Walton and his servant are liable to an action. Ellis, the usher, said he knew Mr. Walton to be a most respectable and upright tradesman.—Mr. Broderip: He leaves this court without a stain on his character. It is a monstrous infringement of the liberty of the subject. The prisoners were then set at liberty, and Mr. Walton took home his gas meter. The prisoners were then set at liberty, and air, wanton took home his gas haver.

[There are frequent instances of a disposition on the part of police constables to take people into cust-dy upon charges which they know cannot be sustained; and, although disposed to do full justice to the New Police, as a body, yet we think these individual cases of the arbitrary exercise of power cught to be watched narrowly and punished. Two Omnibus Drivers Committed to the subject would be but a mere delusion if such conduct as that above noticed were of frequent occurrence.]

Two Omnibus Drivers Committed to the first of two Camberwell omnibuses, were summoned for furious driving, and endangering the lives of the passengers of their respective vehicles, as will as those passing along the road.—Mr. Courage, of the firm of Courage and Donaldson, the brewers of Shad Thames, stated that on Wednesday he was a passenger in one of the omnibuses, and that soon after they left the Elephant and Castle, the defendants, who were the drivers, commenced driving at a very rapid pace along the road. They seemed to be vieing with each other as to who should be foremost, and, in endesouring to obtain this point, they put their horses into a gallop, and, from their close proximity to each other on frequent occasions, witness expected every moment that a collision would have taken place, and that an upset of either one or both the vehicles would have occurred. Even when the defendants got into Camberwell they still continued driving at the same furious speed up High-street, which is very narrow; and when they arrived at the Red Cap, witness got out and remonstrated against such conduct, and determined to appear against them. There were ten passengers in the omnibus in which he rode, one of whom was a lady.—Mr. Allport, a gentleman, who was a passenger in the other omnibus, also gave evidence confirmatory of the furious manner in which both vehicles were driven by the defendants. A collision did take place in the course of their career, and it was only a master of surprise that an accident of a most serious nature had not occurred.—Other evidence having been given, Mr. Cottingham said that it was the worst case of that description that was ever brought before him—that he considered he would not be doing justic prisonment and hard labour, it is hoped, will induce them to reform their conduct altogether.]

The Case of the French Bankeuft.—The Act for the Extradition of Offenders.—The French fraudulent bankrupt case was brought before the Lord Bayor at the Mansion House on Wednesday. Mr. E. James applied for a warrant to arrest Jacques Besset, a French merchant, residing in London, accused of the French crime of fraudulent bankruptcy. The learned counsel after alluding to the recent decision of the Court of Queen's Bench on the matter, urged the Lord Mayor to grant the warrant, as it would sford an opportunity of initiating proceedings de nono, and thus clear away a difficulty only occasioned in the first instance by the illegality of the instrument upon which Besset was committed to the custody of the keeper of the gaol. The necessary documentary proofs recognised by the French law were ready, and the learned counsel submitted that there could be no valid ground for refusing the warrant under all the circumstances. Mr. James called some witnesses who deposed to the legality of the proceedings in France, after which the Lord Mayor said, that he had looked very particularly into the act, and, as the person accused of fraudulent bankruptey could not be committed for such an offence in this country, he did not see how he, as a magistrate, could be justified in giving a warrant for the apprehension of an individual so charged. Mr. James contended, that the decision of the Lord Mayor would neutralise the important objects of the late Act of Convention, but his lordship said he could not come to any other conclusion.

Public Walks and Baths in Birmingham,—On Tuesday there was a very numerous and respectable meeting at the Town Hall, Birmingham, the Mayor in the chair, for the purpose of considering the propriety of adopting the necessary measures for securing to the people of Birmingham public baths and places of recreation. A resolution, moved by Lord Lyttelton, was carried, stating "that the meeting, considering the great extent, the dense and increasing population of the borough of Birmingham, and the growing difficulties of obtaining for a large portion of its inhabitants ready access to places for ablution, fresh air, and healthful recreation, declares its opinion that the formation of public baths and public walks, or other open spaces for exercise and active sports in the vicinity of the borough, would contribute greatly to the health, rational enjoyment, kindly intercourse, and good morals of all classes of our population." A resolution for the establishment of at least four sets of public baths in the most convenient parts of the borough was also agreed to, and a subscription was set on foot to carry out the objects of the meeting. No less a sum than £3000 was collected.

Lord Harborough and some persons employed on the Midland Railway, arising out of a notice given on the part of his Lordship to the Railway Company, that they would not be allowed to send any one to survey the park. The most violent skirmish was yesterday week at Saxby-bridge, adjoining his lordship's park. The surveyors were defeated on the previous day, and it was generally understood that another attempt on a larger scale was to be made on the following morning. Consequently, by nine o'clock between thirty and forty of his lordship's part and the numerous spectatore. Great confusion now ensued, the two parties mixing together, and in the tumult and dirt becoming almost undistinguishable by each other. There were some broken heads during the affray. In the midst of this confusion, the surveyors succeeded in getting the chain on the forbidden ground. Lord Harborough's men then took foreible possession of the chain, which in the scuffle to recover it, was broken in one or two places. A fine chase was then had for about a quarter of a mile down the towing path. Another barrier was then shout to be formed, when a truce was shouted by the railwayists, and it was finally agreed that each party should withdraw their forces, and that the matter should be judicially braught before the magistrates by issuing a summons for assault against one ortwo of the men of each party.

Serious Case of imparticipe at Wolverhampton.—An investigation is now going forward in Wolverhampton, in which a lady, of hitherto respectable character, together with a married sister and a young surgeon, is charged as being implicated in a case of infanticide. A coroner's inquest, under the presidency of Mr. Philips, one of the coroners for Staffordshire, has been held some days, and stands adjourned for further evidence. There was an examination of the parties at the Police-office on Monday, when the charge was regularly heard. The mother of the child is a Miss Railton, and the other accused persons are Mrs. Hildreth her sister), and Mr. Sheriff (the surgeon); Mr. Hildreth has also been taken into custody since the inquest. The evidence was such that the magistrates expressed their intention of sending the case for trisl, but the prinoners were remanded until the conclusion of the inquest. The inquiry is the engressing topic of conversation in the neighbourhood. Miss Railton is the sisterinants of Brighton was held at the Town-hall, on Monday afternoon, for the purpose of receiving the report of the committee appointed at the public meeting held on Monday, the 21st ult., to consider

Masonic Frittal at Nottingham. The town began to fill at an early hour, and the day appeared like a general holiday. At eleven o'clock, a procession of immense length and high respectability proceeded to St. Peter's Chucch, where service took place. At two o'clock the Grand Lodge was opened for the transaction of business of the day in the immense Erchange Hall, which was completely filled; Colonel Wildman, the proprietor of Nowstead Abbey, the seat of the late Lord Byron, took the chair, supported by the Right Hon. the Earl of Scarborough, the Lord Lieutenant of the County; Lord Rancliffe, past Grand Master for Leicestershire; Charles Richard Colville, Esq., M.P. for South Derbyshire, and past Grand Master for Derbyshire; Coptsin Campbell, past Grand Master for Argyllshire; and numerous other superior officers of the order. In addition to the Grand Officers were present from Leeds, Derby, Wakefield, Leicester, Birmingham, Sheffield, Belper, Chesterfield, York, and all towns in the North. At the conclusion of the Grand Lodge business, a Craft Lodge was opened for the admission of viating brethren, and members presented themselves to the Grand Masters. At four o'clock there was a splendid banques.

THE MANCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND SIZ HENRY POTTINGER.—The Manchester Chamber of Commerce have presented an address to Sir Henry Pottinger, expressive of admiration at his general administration of affairs in China, but particularly in reference to the commercial arrangements efected under his auspices. Sir Henry, in his answer, expresses a hope that China will in due time reap the full reward she so well merits for her liberality in the arrangements; and that all other nations wishing to particularly to-day in shirtings, long cloths, &c.—fabrics calculated for the More incendiary fires at Reepham, Norfolk, one attended by considerable loss of property, the other not so extensive. Soon after nine o'clock on Thursday week, a servant in the employ of Mr. Hickling, who holds a large farm at Cawston, perceived flames issuing from some barley and straw stacks, when stood in a part of the yard remote from the dwelling-house or other buildings. By great exertions, the house, farm buildings, and live-stock were saved, but the stacks in which the fire originated were wholly consumed. Mr. Hickling was insured.—Aqout the same hour, on the preceding Monday night, another fire broke out in a shed standing in a meadow, within less than a mile of Reepham, belonging to Mr. Bircham, farmer. The shed, which was a considerable distance from the farm-yard, was burned down before assistance could be procured. Two tramps, who were seen in the neighbourhood within a short time of the fire breaking out, are suspected to have caused it, but no trace of either has been obtained.

ATROCIOUS MURDER AT YARNOUTH.—A most brutal and unparalleled murder was committed on Tuesday at Yarmouth, Norfolk. As far as the facts are already known, it appears that the deceased, named Harrist Candler, who was a widow woman, very quiet and respectable, was a member of the Wesleyam Society, and managed as kind of chandlery shop, selling flour, oatmeal, pollard, &c. The night polleenan on duty found her street door partially open; he called to her, but receiving no answer proceeded to examine the till, suspecting some robbery had been committed. Lying down by the side of the till, with her head forced under the counter, he found the deceased, literally deluged in her own blood. Her shull had no less than five wounds inflicted upon it; one of them in the left side so severe as to throw the upper portion of the bone so as to overlap another broken part of the skull. On the right side of the neck a wound had been inflicted sufficiently severe to sever a portion of the vertebre of the neck, and one of her flogers was cut off, probably whilst uplitted in defence. Deceased lived quite alone in the house, and went to a public-house opposite to purchase her susper beer, leaving the expectation of the vertebre of the neck, and one of her flogers was cut off, probably whilst uplitted in defence. The deceased had for a time reading a religious work, and drank a portion of the porter; she then went into the about the accessed was found and the second of the strength of the proter; she then went into the about the accessed was for a time reading a religious work, and drank a portion of blood upon it. MURDER IN ESSEX.—An inquiry took place at Navestock, Essex, last week, before Mr. Lewis, the coroner, touching the death of Martha Phillips, the wife of a labourer, who was found dead in a field in that parish. It appeared from the evidence, that the deceased was found lying on her back in one of Mr. Hicks's fields; an umbrella and can of beer were by her side, her clothes were in disorder, and her pockets turned inside out. On her being removed some blood came from the right ear. There were appearances about the ground as if there had been some struggling. The coroner having summed up, the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against John Young, and he was committed to take his trial.

Dr. Abscrombie was in such health on the day of his death as to be preparing to go out on his usual professional visits, when he was found dead. Dr. Abercrombie was the author of two valuable treatises on the "Intellectual Powers, and the Investigation of Truth;" and on "The Philosophy of Moral Feeling." In 1835, Dr. Abercrombie was elected Lord Rector of Marsachal College and University, Aberdeen, and published his inaugural address, which afterwards appeared in an enlarged form under the title of "Culture and Discipling of the Mind."

FATAL COLLERY ACCIDENT.—An accident of a fatal nature occurred at Dalziel Colliery, near Hamilton, belonging to the Messrs. Wilson, on Saturday last. Three brothers, of the name of Laird, were accending from their work, when, owing to some mismanagement on the part of the engine-man, the cage was drawn up to the hurls, and one of the brothers, named George, was dreadfully mangled, and died in a few minutes; another had his hand split up, and the third, his leg broken; another man, named Philip, was in the cage, but when he came on a level with the surface, seeing the danger he was in, he ran the risk of jumping off, and was caught by some one on the pit-head, which prevented his falling down the shaft. The engine-man has since been apprehended, but bailed out.

Loss of NINE LIVES.—On Thursday week a boat belonging to the island of Eday left Kirkwall for home, with nine persons on board—viz., three brothers, named Garrioch; two brothers and a sister, named Tulloch; a young man, John Fotheringham; a girl, named Elizabeth Garroch; and a girl named Hercus; all belonging to the same island. It is thought that, finding the Stornay Frith rough, the boat may have returned, and that she was upset in Kirkwall Bay, or near the mouth of the String, off Shapinshay, as the boat was found next morning near Saverock, driven ashore, with the body of one of the sufferers in it. The watch found on the body had stopped at half-past five o'clock, when the accident had probably happened.

THE RHINE, THE RHEINGAU, AND ITS WINES.

We trace in the elevated Alps, in Switzerland, and near Mount St. Gothard, the sources of the Rhône, the Tessin, and the Rhône, or the king of the German—nay, of the West European rivers. The visitor, on ascending the Rhine, or on his arrival at Strasbourg, calls to his recollection how this stream has hastened his course through the Lakes of Constance and Zellern; how he precipitated himself over the rocky ramparts at Shaffhausen, then strengthened by the col-lected waters of Switzerland—the influx of 370 glaciers and upwards of 2700 rivers of various sizes-he commences his majestic course near the ancient Roman city of Bals; how he expands between the upper Black Forest, amidst ranges of mountains encircling a valley of nearly 30 miles in breadth, through which he playfully winds, and receiving, besides other streams, the important Neckar and Maine, until a rocky gate at Bingen seems to arrest his further career, but which he powerfully bursts, and strengthened by the Nahe and Moselle, overcomes a similar obstacle at Andermach, when he continues his victorious course towards the sea.

Most travellers think they have seen the beauties of the Rhine when a steamer has carried them up or down between Dusseldorf and Strasbourg; but nothing a more erroneous than this, for however beautiful the sight may be from the river, nothing can equal the scenes when viewed from the heighths: Bingen, Rudesheim, St. Goar, and Godesberg, are the points at which the traveller should atop and make his excursions towards heights and valleys which irresistibly fix his admiration. Without dwelling on the description of towns, remarkable castles, and hamlets comprised in the direction between Frankfort and Coblentz, we shall merely confine ourselves to the small district within Wiesbaden and Bacharach, or rather, properly called the Rheingau, between Walluf and Lorch. where the Rhine vends his course from east to west. The Rheingau is but a small tract of land, and strictly on the right bank of the Rhine, only occupying an area of about 25 miles. The fertility and riches of production as to the cultivation of wine is concentrated in this little spot. It is the celebrated vineyard

As early as the third century the Emperor Probus is said to have planted the grape of the banks on the Rhine. According to more correct history, Charle-magne is said to have observed from his castle, Ingelheim, how early the snow commenced melting on the Rudesheim mountain, planted Orleans grapes, and history sufficiently establishes the fact. The vineyards in the Rheingau are of considerable extent, and those belonging to Prince Metternich are the most celebrated: they are known by the name of Johannisberg.

The wines produced in Germany are mostly white: the red wines are those from the Burgundy grape. The white grapes are the Riesling; they are small, require a hot summer, ripen equally, and give the best flavoured and finest wine. The Orleans grape, a larger kind, likewise requires a hot summer, produces a highcoloured and glowing wine, but is inferior to the former; the Orleans grape is therefore little cultivated. The Tramine, a light red grape, ripens early, gives a strong sweet wine, but is deficient in flavour. So is the deep red Ruland grape introduced from Hungary. There are a variety of other grapes, but their qualities are inferior.

The cultivation of the vine, especially the Riceling, has been much improved since 1815; such as open planting, low props, repeated and suitable manuring, classification of the grape in gathering, proper and timely pressing, confined fermentation, &c. The vine yields the choicest wine in the fourth year, and attains the age of from 25 to 50 years. The Rheingau is considered a model school for wine-growers. An acre will hold about 4000 vines, and yield from eight to twelve ohms in a favourable autumn. Besides the excellence of the soil, consisting of clay and slate, the Rheingau is particularly adapted for the maturing of the grape. Along the course of the Rhine here a range of hills extends from east to west on the right bank, and the fertile valley and the hills themselves, solving towards the right bank, and the fertile valley and the hills themselves, sloping towards the river, are warmed on the southern side, sheltered against the north winds, and there being no hills on the opposite side, no shadow is thrown towards this direction, and therefore this delightful country is never deprived of the congenial warmth which the longest sunny day gives it. To this must be added the regular morning vapours ascending from the Rhine. We may easily conceive why the Rheingau stands so pre-eminently as a wine country; for here are combined excellence of soil, natural advantages of position, choice of grape and unremitted stretching on the part of the intelligence religious religious.

The limits of our columns prevent us from entering into details as to the treatment of the various vines, but we may briefly mention that the beat wine is pro-duced about the middle part of the hills; lower down, or at the foot of the hill, the flavour is inferior, and the taste somewhat earthy. The most magnificent of all vineyards is the Rudesheim mountain, of nearly 400 acres: it is surrounded to its very top with walls, and has the appearance of a fortress. Those walls, or belts, form a series of terraces, which sustain the ground on the steep ascent; and where the old castle Ehrenfels hovers over the Buigerloch, there thrive the most luxuriant of the Rudesheim wines.

The cultivation of wine occupies more hands than any branch of agriculture, for it requires indefatigable labour throughout the whole year, it absorbs attention, and demands capital. The wine-grower considers himself happy if one season out of five he meets with a favourable autumn; he is then sure to be richly compensated.

tion, and demands capital. The wine-grower considers himself happy if one season out of five he meets with a favourable autumn; he is then sure to be richly compensated.

That the reader may form an idea of the great importance resulting to Germany from the cultivation of wine, we may state that the last returns of the Zollverein proved that the produce is not less than 300,000,000 of litres, which, even as unfermented wine, is valued at 77,500,000 florins, or £6 458,518. We read in romances that the vintage is the happiest and merriest life the labourer enjoy, but in the Rheingau it certainly is not the case. The undivided attention in the collecting of grapes different in their stage of maturity, the proper time of pressing, are duties which make the labourer forget his cheerfulness, and force on his countenance a seriousness and care. It being a branch of industry which requires constant attention and subjects them to great responsibility yet do we see the labourers, women, and children, or the musical Germans go at daybreak singing to the hills, and returning in the evening with a cheerful tune, eccasionally, at the end of the harvest, enjoying a dance.

The German wines are considered good at five years, but the better qualities require double that time. Some of the finest sort do not improve after five. Of all wines, white wines are tne most durable; this is ascribed by chemists to their perfect fermentation. Old German wines deepen in colour, and acquire an agreeable acidity.

Among the many celebrated vineyards in the Rheingau, the Johannisberg has always been prominent. The Johannisberg is an isolated hill, and is protected, like the other hills of the Rheingau, from the northerly winds. It was formerly the property of the Priory of Fulda, belonged afterwards to General Kellermann, and now to Prince Metternich. The castle hill yields, in favourable season, 40 hogsheads of wine, valued at 80,000 florins; the quality is most exquisite, and precaution is taken in scaling the bottles with the Prince's crea

HER MAJEST Y LATE VISIT T O BURGHLEY.

We now proceed to the completion of our illustrated chronicle of this Royal Visit, with details of the Progress supplementary to the report in our Journal of last week.

report in our Journal of last week.

Our first Engraving represents the Royal cortége passing the scenic Castle, constructed for the occasion upon the site of lthe large fortress, by which, together with embattled walls and bastion towers, Northampton was formerly defended. Leland describes the Castle as standing "hard by the West Gate," and having "a large kepe." "The area of the resideu is very large, and bullewarkes of yerth be made afore the castelle-gate." The walls and gates, and parts of this Castle were demolished in 1662. The temporary Castle had a capital scenic effect; and we are informed by a correspondent it will be kept up for some time, together with the four triumphal arches at Northampton. One of these, the arch at West Bridge, is engraved in the the next column. ampton. One of the next column.

The next illustration shows the loyal reception of her Majesty in the market-place at Northampton. The festal preparations in the town are thus described in the Northampton Herald:—

"Many a long year has passed since the ancient town of North-ampton presented a scene of similar bustle and activity to that which it bore for several days previous to her Majesty's visit, and as the hour of her Majesty's approach arrived, the whole population appeared to be vying with each other in their attempts to honour the auspicious visit of their beloved Sovereign and her Royal Consort. Along the route through which it had been arranged for the Royal carriage to pass every house exhibited more or less enthusiam on the part of its inhabitants in giving effect to this feeling of loyalty and affection. Festoons of evergreens and flowers floated across all the principal streets, and no fewer than four magnificent triumphal arches, tastefully designed, had been thrown across the road at different parts of the town. The first of these was situated just below the old castle hill, on the Dallington side of the river. The second was placed in Mare Fair. The style of this arch is Elizabethan—in keeping with Burghley House. The design consisted of three arches, a large one in the centre, and two smaller ones on either side. The span of the centre arch was about four-teen feet; that of each of the smaller ones measuring five feet. Three pillars supported this ornamental piece of architecture; the two great ones upon which the centre arch was formed were six feet square and twenty-eight feet high. The other two were four feet was are and sixteen feet high. Including the decorative turrets, the height of the wolling the syntamic parts of the two smaller ones about twenty-one feet each. The whole was surmounted by a crown, over which the Royal standard floated. The inscription, "Welcome Victoria and Albert," was painted in large characters at the upper part of the arch, and the lower portion was decorated with evergreens, and flowers. The third arch, even more colossal, was situated at the side of All Saints' Churchyard, and nearly opposite the George. This also bore a similar inscription, and was, like the others, a very imposing structure. The fourth arch, the most admirable of the whole, was erected at the eastern extremity of the town, at the top of Abington-street. In addition to these arches, a temporary wooden structure was erected on the site of the ancient castle, of which only a small portion of the walls remain. In the front of All Saints' Church a spacious platform was also erected, for the accommodation of all the Sunday-school children in the town."

In the Northampton Mercury are the following additional particulars:—Her Majesty expressed herself in warm terms in approval of her reception, and evinced a considerable degree of gratified surprise, at the extent of the decorations, observing—"They are, indeed, very beautiful." The procession once more moved on, amidst the clanging of the bells, the strains of the National Anthem, and the acclamation of the people, round the front of All Saints' Church, under the triumphal arch at the end of Mercers' Row, and alon Mercers' Row, which, like Gold-street, was so profusely decorated with evergreens and gorgeous flags and streamers, as to rather wear the appearance of a grove decked out for some triumphal occasion than a street, and finally, up the long line of Abington-street, which, like the other streets, exhibited a profusion of laurels, banners, and other decorations. At the end of this street, was the last, the most tasteful, and the most imposing of the triumphal arches, extending across the street from the residence of the Mavor to the garden wall of the house of S. Percival, Esq., at the corner of Churchlane. Here the civic procession filed off on each side of the Royal carriage; her Majesty and Prince Albert graciously acknowledged the final obeisances of the Corporation, and the Royal pair proceeded rapidly on their road to Burghley."

A correspondent mentions among the celebrations of the event at

HER MAJE TY PASSING THE MARKET-PLACE, NORTHAMPTON.

MAJESTY PASSING "THE CASTLE," NORTHAMPTON.

Northampton, a large dinner at the Angel Hotel, a splendid ball at the George Hotel, whilst almost every private house had its small party. "Not only," says our correspondent, "does the town feel honoured by the visit of the Queen, but that honour has been much increased by the Mayor being invited to Burghley, and by the gracious reception he met with both from the Queen and the Prince, who expressed themselves gratified with their loyal reception by the Northamptonians."

Among the incidents, it is stated that more than sixty pair of horses were supplied from the George Hotel, during the week, solely on account of her Majesty's visit. A valuable charger died at the hotel stables on Sunday, it is supposed of exhaustion; it was the property of one of her Majesty's escort, Sir A. Chichester, of the 7th Hussars, who is stated to have been lately offered a considerable sum for this fine animal.

Among the lasting memorials of the Queen's visit to Northampton, is the foundation of "the Royal Victoria Dispensary," the subscription for which has already approached £1000.

On Thursday, a pair of patent Wellington boots, manufactured by Mr. H. Hull, was presented by E. H. Barwell, Esq., the Mayor of Northampton, to His Royal Highness Prince Albert, at Burghley, as a specimen of the staple trade of this town. The workmanship is very splendid. The front, of scarlet velvet, is interlaid with scrolls of black patent leather. The Prince of Wales's plume is neally stitched in the centre; the scrolls round the top and front are in white silk, and the Royal arms inside the lining, in gold. His Royal Highness personally expressed to the Mayor his approbation of the skill exhibited by the manufacturer, who has since received a formal acknowledgment of the present.

The next illustration shows one of the most tastefully constructed arches, in the village of Broughton, between Northampton and Kettering, where the preparations were extensive. "The entrance to, and exit from the place," says the Northampton Herald, "were ornamented with triumphal arches, formed of evergreens and flowers tastefully arranged, and the whole population of the village decked in holiday attire, lined the wood on either side, testifying in every possible manner, as the Royal party passed, the intensity of their gratification at even the momentary glance of her Majesty which the rapid progress of the Royal carriages allowed. The Hon. and Rev. James Douglas, a relative of his Grace the Duke of Buccleuch, who is the incumbent of the parish, had taken an active part in the arrangements here; and he was worthly seconded by the yeomanry of the neighbourhood, the occasion being observed as a gala day by all classes, from the highest to the lowest grade."

The following is quoted from the Northampton Mercury.—
"Between Weldon and Bulwick, the Royal party passed the seat of the Earl of Cardigan, at Deene Park. Here a very large and handsome arch was thrown across the road. It was an imitation of masonry, and very happily executed.

"But a more interesting sight here was the junction of Lord Cardi-gan's tenantry, who mustered in great numbers by the roadside, and fell in with the Royal cortège. They saluted her Majesty with hearty fell in with the Royal cortège. They saluted her Majesty with hearty cheers.

"By this time the followers of the Royal party had very considerably increased. At every point on the wayside, some few additions were made of horsemen or vehicles, and the appearance of such a large body, proceeding at so rapid a rate, preceded by the soldiers and the Royal carriages, with the outriders in their scarlet coats, was particularly striking."

Deene Park is situated on the confines of the Royal Forest of Rockingham and presents very beautifully diversified scenery. The mansion is built entirely of stone, and with several embattled turrets. The hall has a timber-framed roof, the windows are emblazoned with family arms, and the walls are hung with fine paintings.

HER MAJESTY'S DEPARTURE FROM BURGHLEY-HOUSE.

On Friday morning her Majesty, Prince Albert, and the suite left Burghley at half-past nine o'clock, on their return to London. Her Majesty had previously taken leave of the Marchioness of Exeter and the reft of the family. The Marquis accompanied her Majesty on horseback one stage, and then went on in his carriage to be ready to receive her Majesty at Weedon.

All along the route from Stamford to Kettering the same demonstrations of loyalty and affection were made by the people as on her Majesty's journey down. The triumphal arches had all remained up, and the houses were very gaily decorated with flags, evergreens, &c. The Royal party changed horses at the same stages as on their journey down.

HER MAJESTY'S RYTURN, -THE WEEDON STATION.

ARCH AT BROUGHTON.

At Kettering, also, there was a great demonstration by the people. At Northampton her Majesty was received by the Mayor and Corporation and a procession of the town-trades, in the same manner as on her journey down. They preceded the Royal carriages as they went at a walking pace through the town.

At the town and station of Weedon great numbers of people had collected. The military (47th Foot) lined the road, and there was a guard of honour (of the 47th) under the command of Captain Gordon. The Marquis of Exeter, who had arrived previously, and Sir Henry Dryden, the high sheriff of the county, were at the station to receive her Majesty.

At a quarter past two the approach of her Majesty to the station was her Majesty.

At a quarter past two the approach of her Majesty to the station was announced by the elevation of the Royal standard, and in a few minutes more the Royal party entered the station. Her Majesty and the Prince went to their apartments.

On the departure of the Queen and Prince Albert, the Prince shook hands with the Marquis of Exeter, and the train started, amidst the cheers of the people, at five minutes to three o'clock. The regular train had not long preceded it, so that great precaution was required. (Continued on page 328)

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1844.

A dispute is pending between the "tight little island" of Jersey and her Majesty's Court of Queen's Bench, which promises to produce some curious discussion. It was, we believe, generally supposed that in no place within the British dominions was a writ of habeas corpus of no effect. Many of our readers must remember the prisoners brought into the Court of Queen's Bench at West-master from Canada, shortly after the outbreak there. In that enective across the Atlantic. And it would be the same in Australia, in Calcutta, in our settlement in the Island of Hong-Kong. Wherever, in fact, the English Constitution is known at all, this, one of the best powers of the Constitution, must be obeyed. What a safeguard it is against oppression and abuse of authority we need not point out; our fathers thought it worth fighting for—we should be but degenerate sons if we did not consider it worth the trupble of recognitions. if we did not consider it worth the trouble of preserving, or if permitted it to be sacrificed to any absurd notions of local rights, or to the prescription of exemption claimed by an obscure and insignificant spot of earth, that would be scarcely heard of at all if it did not now and then make itself ridiculous.

The island of Jersey has preserved a code of laws which is now a mass of confusion, being made up of the old Norman-French legal system, combined with portions of the jurisprudence of the twelfth and fourteenth centuries. It has been exempted from most of the statute law which applies to England, and, locally, may pretty well be said to govern itself. But the exemption from these different laws does not, we should apprehend, place it out of the pale of the Constitution. No special acts of Parliament out of the pale of the Constitution. We special acts of radiative have been necessary to make the writ of habeas corpus obeyed in our most distant settlements, and we do not see that the personal liberty of English residents should be placed in jeopardy as the caprice of the Royal Court, merely because that body chooses to assert an independence of England in one of the most vital of our Constitutional privileges.

It has been found necessary, at various times, to suppress every claim to peculiar jurisdictions, and exemption from the general operation of the law, in many small places and localities scattered through the kingdom. The sovereignty of the Isle of Man was purchased from the Derby family, because an exemption from the general revenue law of England converted the island into a den of smugglers. The old rights of sanctuary claimed by various places in England, made them at last perfect nuisances to the commonin England, made them at last perfect nuisances to the commonwealth. The holiness of the altar of the Church of God once shielded from arrest the criminal who could take refuge at its foot. It was not exclusively a Christian usage, for the same, or at least a similar protection was given within the precincts of the temples of the Heathens. That privilege was often abused, and when, as it afterwards did in Christian Europe, it became extended to whole districts, some of them lying in the heart of crowded cities, it may easily be perceived that there could be neither peace nor safety in a society that permitted these "harbours of refuge" for all that was dissolute, vile, and desperate to remain without the pale of the law. The "Alsatia" of old, the space lying between Fleet-street and the Thames, and bounded on the east and west by Blackfriars and the Temple, was one of these privileged spots, and the crime and disorder that abounded in it have no parallel in modern London. Who does not recollect the use made of it by Sir Walter Scott in his "Fortunes of Nigel," and the vivid picture he gives of the revels of Duke Hildebrand and his crew? But amid all their brutal riot he places the dark deed of the murder of the miser; and in so doing he adhered to the probable and the true, for the knife was as familiar to the hands of the and the true, for the knife was as familiar to the hands of the privileged and protected ruffians as the handle of the wine flagon. Another place of the same sort was the Mint in Southwark, which has fallen for imaginative illustration into the hands of Mr. Harrison Ainsworth. His description is far enough from Scott's in dramatic effect, but we fancy it is very near the literal truth. Let the reader try to imagine what such dens would have become in the present day, and he will at once see the wisdom of our predecessors in abolishing, without condition or reserve, all the "exemptions." and charters, and privileges, which these places "exemptions," and charters, and privileges, which these places pleaded on behalf of a continued immunity from the wholesome supervision of the law.

The island of Jersey is not an Alsatia nor a Mint. It is not a The island of Jersey is not an Alsatia nor a Mint. It is not a rogue's paradise, nor in that sense of the term, a refugium peccatorum. It is liable to the visits of Bow-street, and cannot exclude the presence of Daniel Forrester, should occasion render it necessary, for the detection of a thief, the recovery of property, or the apprehension of a forger. But it claims something else, which is quite as great an exemption from the law of the kingdom, and to the occasional English inhabitants of the island may have even a warse effect. That exemption cannot be safely allowed. even a worse effect. That exemption cannot be safely allowed. If the letter of the law permits such an abuse, the sooner na Act of Parliament places the matter beyond a doubt the better.

Nothing can exceed the courtesy of Railway Directors, when it is known that Royal and noble personages are travelling or going to travel by "the line," in special trains for special purposes. The accommodation is bountiful—even excessive. But the public at large—that very comprehensive and at times very ill-used body—frequently find the managers of the Boards, of whom every one must now purchase locomotion, rather the reverse of attentive. Trains do not start, or do not arrive at the times specified, luggage goes astray, tickets are issued with too little rigour, and demanded with a little too much; all kinds of small misfortunes happen, of which some of the blame may be ascribed to the Railway Company, and a good deal, perhaps, to the travellers themselves. But beyond being pilloried in the grievance column of a morning paper, by some senex or Viator, very little can be done to these gigantic corpora-Senex or Viator, very little can be done to these gigantic corpora-tions of conveyancers. The equanimity with which they hear of the mishaps of the public is astonishing—as long as they are mere common, plodding, commercial people. What earthly con-sequence can punctuality of arrival or departure be to them? But it may happen that a railway train may carry a Duke in the most pri-vate and unostentatious manner, and being guilty of the same want of punctuality, may then hear of it in a manner that produces more effect on them. This, according to a story that annears in the papers. effect on them. This, according to a story that appears in the papers, has just happened. The Duke of Wellington coming from Dover to London to attend a Privy Council was delayed by the train an hour beyond the time it ought to have been, and thus arrived too late. It is said that he, in consequence, rebuked those who had the management rather sharply. The deprecatory reply was, that if they had known his Grace was a traveller they would have had a special train for him, by which they only made matters worse; they were told plainly that it was not the convenience of the Duke of Wellington they were bound to consult, but that of the public at large, the times appropried they ought but that of the public at large; the times announced they ought to keep, whether their passengers were dukes or draymen. Such was in effect the lesson said to have been read them by his Grace. We cannot vouch for the authenticity of the story, but we hope it may be true in the first place, and that the railway officials will profit by the rebuke in the next. The reply to the offer of special accommodation, certainly reads very much like what we think the Duke would say, and agrees completely with the direct, clear, and common-sense view he is known to take of most questions. If the anecdote is not true, it certainly ought to be.

Improvements in Hydr Parks.—The piece of durty water in Hyde-park, facing the new gate at Knightsbridge, called Albert-gate, which formerly flowed from a waterfall in connexion with and at the east end of the Serpentine River, has now been entirely removed, and the vacuum filled up. In its place appears a well-gravelled road from the new gate to the ride, being for equestrians only, as the celebrated ride called Rotten-row is devoted entirely for the use of equestrians, no carriages, except those of the royal family, being admitted within the drive, and the privilege is rarely, if ever, availed of by them. This new road, in place of the unsightly piece of water, is a very great improvement, in addition to its being a vast convenience to the wealthy inhabitants of the numerous splendid atreets and squares recently formed on the Marquis of Westminster's catate in Pimlico. The statue of Sir Thomas Gresham is expected to be put up next week.

THE BALL AT GUILDHALL FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE POLES.—The fancy ball at Guildhall for the benefit of the distressed Polish refugees, took place on Tuesday night, and went off with considerable éclat. The hall was decorated in the 9th of November. The company began to arrive soon after eight o'clock, and at half-past nine o'clock dancing commenced. The anusements of the evening did not entirely consist of dancing, but were varied by the introduction of a vocal concert, in the course of which Miss Sarah Flower, Mrs. Rodwell, Miss Steele, Signor Ferrari, &c. sang various pieces. This concert took place in the Common Council chamber, and very pleasantly diversified the enjoyments of the evening. Dancing was then resumed, and kept up with great spirit to an early hour of the morning. Among the company were the Earl and Countess of Errol, the Earl of Munster, Lady Adelaide Fitzclarence, Countess of Inaherville, Countess of Glengall, Lady Mary Fox. Lord Dudley C. Stuart, Colonel Fox, M.P., Colonel Leicester Stanhope, Mr. C. Villiers, M.P., the Hon. Mr. Abbott, Sir H. Webbe, Sir W. Magnay, Mr. H. Baring, M.P., &c. Such a principle of co-operation and self-support can only require to be known among artists to become extended.

THE LOST BRIDGEROOM FOUND.—A paragraph appeared in our paper last week relative to the mysterious disappearance of Joseph Ames, who has been book keeper of the Bull Inn, Aldgate, immediately after being married at Whitechapel Church. It has been already stated that previously to the wedding he made arrangements to come into the occupancy of the Kent and Essex publichouse, High-street, Whitechapel, and had paid a deposit. On the receipt of his extraordinary letter, his wife and her friends were naturally greatly alarmed, and began to fear that he contemplated suicide; although they knew no cause to which to attribute any neutral distress or annoyance. They have, however, since been relieved from all their tears and anxieties by the return of the Oridegroom, who, having "thought better of the matter," resolved to come back and claim his wife. The oddest part of the business is, that he could assign no motive for his strange conduct, merely sajing that he experienced a feeling of despondency with regard to his new undertaking. He is, however, now in possession of the house in question.

M. Daubrée, who keeps the large bookseller's shop in the passage Vivienne, Paris, on Thursday evening week perceived a woman stop at his doorway, and take away a book from amongst those placed outside for display. He ran out, and caught her with the stolen article, a penny almanack, in her possession. He was taking her before the commissary of the district, when, as they accended the staircase, the prisoner drew a poniard knife, and plunged it to the haft in the body of the unforturate man, who fell dead on the instant. Sho then fied, but was apprehended almost immediately, and taken before the commissary, who, after investigating the matter, committed her for trial.

Accounts from Gabas, on the French frontier of Arragon, state that, within a period of forty years, there has not been at this carly season to much snow on the mountains, and that even the upper valleys are so charged with it, and the passage into Arragon rendered so bad, that the noted Mingarra, who last year made a journey of 34 leagues (85 miles) in one day, has lately very nearly lost his life in making the attempt.

FATAL AND MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT ON THE MIDLAND COUNTIES RAILWAY.

We regret to announce that a very serious accident took place on Thursday on the Midland Counties Railway, at Beeston, near Nottingham. In consequence of the fog, the down-train from Nottingham came into contact with a train coming to that town. A second edition of the Nottingham Journal contains the following particulars of this fatal event. It says the collision was quite unavoid-or the log; the down-train from Nottingham came into contact with a train coming to that town. A second edition of the Nottingham Journal contains the following particulars of this fatal event. It says the collision was quite unavoidable, and the destruction tremendous.

In consequence of the down-train being driven at so much more rapid a pace than the train from Nottingham, and being a much heavier train, and having a powerful and very heavy engine, the up-train from Nottingham austained the principal part of the damage. So great was the force with which the down train met the up-train, that the engine of the latter was actually driven from its position downwards, and the boiler was elevated to the height of many feet above it, the tender of the engine was driven through the parecl-carriage, and the two passenger second-class conveyances were as completely smashed to pieces as a nutshell when trodden under foot. The unfortunate passengers in these two carriages were dreadfully crushed and mutilated.

Mr. Dean, of Hounds' Gate, Nottingham, commission agent, who had received severe injuries about the head, was first taken out, and was able to stand, but speechless; a Mr. Varnalls was extricated in a similar condition; Mr. Robinson, in the spirit trade; and Mr. Bowleartidge, of the Three Horse Shoes, Derbyroad, were released in a state of great suffering. Mr. G. Baker, who had taken a second-class ticket, but had by some accident, along with Mr. Tutin, senior, bucher, been put in the first-class carriage, escaped without much isjury. As soon as he was able to collect himself and alight, he assisted, with Mr. Wildey, who had been riding in the third-class, to release their more unfortunate fellow-travellers, and he proceeded as rapidly as he could across some ploughed fields, and over hedges and ditches, to procure assistance; and about an hour after the occurrence of the accident, two cartis, containing straw, and some other conveyances, were procured, and some of the) sufferers were conveyed to Beeston, some to

Mr. J., Bowlestridge, landlord of the Three Horse Shoes, Derby Road, and Miss Ann Gretton, of Stoke Cliff, Staffordshire, were conveyed to the Three Horse Shoes, Derby Road. They were much bruised.

Mr. Gretton, Burton-on-Trent, severely crushed.

Mr. Bradley, Southwell, farmer, leg broken.

Mr. Varnalls, formerly butler at Colwick Hall (dead.) The distressing news of his death was instantly despatched to Mrs. V., who is housekeeper at Mr. Strutt's, Derby.

Mr. Arnold, medical instrument-maker, seriously hurt.

Mr. Garrett, surgeon, of London, extensively injured.
Robert Thornhill, lace-manufacturer, slightly crushed.
David Fox, employed at Mr. Gill's silk-mill, arm broken.

Misses Anu and Maria Lewis, of Sneinton (seriously hurt), owing to the viocence of the concussion, were thrown out of the carriage, and, their dresses becoming entangled, they were nearly stripped. One of them had actually the sole of her shoe torn off.

We regret to say that the conduct of the inhabitants was characterized by anything rather than humanity; the Misses Lewis (who were close to the unfortunate Mr. Dean in the railway carriage) were permitted to remain in almost a state of nudity in a field for upwards of an hour, before they were moved. At length they were taken in a baker's cart to Mr. Hammond's, to whom they were paying a visit, and were afterwards conveyed to their homes. Mr. Dean was also treated with similar neglect.

We understand that her Majesty has it in contemplation to invest his Royal Highneas the Reigning Duke Ernest, of Saxo Coburg and Gotha, with the insignia of the illustrious order of the Garter, as an honorary knight, during his visit to his august relatives in this country. A distinguished circle of personages of high rank are expected to assemble at Windsor Castle in the course of the ensuing week. by Royal invitation, to meet their Royal Highneases the Duke and Duchess of Saxe Coburg and Gotha.

A Cabinet Council was held at the Foreign Office yesterday, at three o'clock. ACCIDENT ON THE GERAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—A fatal accident occurred yesterday morning on this railway. Two men were working upon the line beyond West Drayton, during the intense fog which prevailed. From this circumstance they did not perceive the approach of the down train, and although the engineer blew the whitle, this was not heard. The consequence was, that both men were swept from the line, the train passing on without the conductors having the alightest knowledge of the accident. On arriving at Slough, however, the front part of the engine was discovered to be marked with blood, and on another engine being sent slowly back towards West Drayton, the mutilated bodies were discovered. It would appear that no blame can attach to any one engaged in conducting the train.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO A DISSENTING MINISTER.—Yesterday Mr. Baker held an inquest at the Golden Eagle, Siepney, on view of the body of the Rev. Edwin Parsons, aged 47, a Dissenting minister, attached to Baalam chapel, Mile-end. On Friday morning he was alarmed by a noise. He immediately went out of his room to go down stairs, when his foot caught against something, and he fell down nearly half the flight of stairs. In his fall he knocked down some flower pots. Mrs. Parsons afforded him immediate assistance, and he was carried into his room. The deceased gradually sank from the effects of the injuries he rec

THE INSURRECTION IN SPAIN.—Our latest advices from the north of Spain represent the rising of Zurbano as an important movement. The Indicateur of Bordeaux states that news had been received there that Burgos, Santander, and St. Sebastian had joined in the movement. This, however, requires confirmation. and St. Sebastian had joined in the movement. This, however, requires confirmation. One thing is certain, that General Zurbano is at the head of a body of men who are formidable, as much by their character and past exploits, as by their numbers. They are mostly old soldiers, who served under him during the civil war, and who knew their commander well, and trust him. The country, too, in which the insurrection has broken out, the Sierra de Cameros, is most difficult of approach, and with a very small body of troops he may be able to set Narvaez's army at defiance for months. From Madrid we learn that the court martial appointed to try General Priem and his co-accused assembled on the 14th, under General Ribero. The Fiscal having laid before the tribunal the new facts and proofs which he had obtained since the last trial, General Shelly, Prim's defender, rose and demanded that time be allowed him and the counsel for the other prisoners to prepare their defence. The Court only allowed an hour and a half for this purpose. At 6 o'clock p.m. it resumed its deliberations. General Prim himself presented his defence, in a lengthened and impressive speech. He declared that he was not afraid to die, though he had not as yet attained the age of twenty-nine; that there was only one motive which induced him thus to plead for his life, and that was, he had a widowed mother and an orphan sister, who depended on him only for their existence; and he should, indeed, regret leaving the world while those so dear to him were left behind helpless and unprotected. At nine o'clock the Court adjourned, without pronouncing judgment.

Au attorney in Dublin having died exceedingly poor, a shilling subscription was set on foot to pay the expenses of his funeral. Most of the attorneys and barristers having subscribed, one of them applied to Toler, afterwards Lord Chief Justice Norbury, expressing his hope that he would also subscribe his shilling. "Only a shilling," and Toler, "Only a shilling to bury an attorney there is a guinea; go and bury one-and-twenty of them."

An Irish paper asserts that the merit of the discovery of steam navigation is due to a man named Taylor, a native of Cumnock, who first succeeded in propelling a boat by steam, in the year 1788. In acknowledgment of his claim, a pension of £50 per annum was settled upon his widow by Government, and a donation of £50 was subsequently made to each of his four surviving sisters; but, as this is justly deemed a poor remuneration for such important services, it is now suggested that a national testimonal should be made to the family of Mr. Taylor.

GEORGE THE THIED AND THE SHIP-BUILDEM.

An anecdote is told of George the Third, that, when inspecting the large dock forming at Plymouth during his reign, he inquired "why its dimensions should so greatly exceed those of the other docks?" The builder replied, that "The French were building larger ships than any we had, and therefore it was necessary to have a dock in England fit to receive them." He instanced, amongst others, the Commerce de Marseilles, one of the finest three-deckers; and sure enough, that ship was the first which en tered the large dock, having been sent to England by Lord Hood, at the evacuation of Toulon in 1793. She was found, however, to be so badly timbered as not to be worth the expense of repairs, and she was broken up in August, 1802.

GAS FROM ANIMAL MATTER.

A process has been discovered by which animal matter can be converted into an inodorous gas, which burns with extreme brilliancy. It can be obtained at a very cheap rate, and may be rendered of great utility for domestic purposes, although it is not likely to supersede coal gas in lighting streets.

THE LATE DUCHESS OF ST. ALBANS.

It is stated in the first number of the "Leigh Monthly Magazine," that Miss Mellon, who married the late Mr. Coutts, the banker, and afterwards the Duke of St. Albans, made her first appearance on the stage among an itinerant company in Leigh, in an old barn behind the Old Boar's Head.

TRIAL OF THE ATMOSPHERIC RAILWAY.

A first trial of M. Hallette's atmospheric system of locomotion for railroads was made a few days ago, to the extent of a hundred yards, in his factory at Arras (France). The result is said to have been sufficiently satisfactory to warrant an invitation to M. Argo, M. Seguier, and several other men of science, to winces another trial to be shortly made, and which invitation they have accepted.

A new electro-magnetic light has been invented at Cincinnati, of such power, that one of them, at a height of 200 feet, is expected to illumine the whole

MM. Linare and Palmeri have succeeded in obtaining an electrical current from the earth, sufficient to give a shock, decompose water, and to afford a spark. Their apparatus consists of hollow cylinders of iron, covered with seven superimposed coils of copper wire. These cylinders are rapidly rotated by means of wheel works, and the spark is produced by breaking contact with mercury.

This material, which is now employed for almost everything, is now devoted by the French to another purpose. They have introduced a new manufacture, by making stockings wholly of India-rubber thread. They are made by machines, and are said to be excellent in preventing rheumatic pains.

The ancients formerly used salt water to clarify and preserve wine. This discovery is said to have been owing to a slave having drunk part of a cask of wine committed to his care, and concealed the fraud with salt water. The wine thus falsified was found to be superior to the wine of the same growth contained in the other casks. The Romans were but children in the art of adulteration when compared with the Greeks. Pliny, in enumerating the several kinds of adulteration practised in his day, exclaims, "How can we wonder if wine, produced by such practices, should rather possess the qualities of poison than of wine!"

PAINFUL COINCIDENCE.

A police report of last week says, there is a "Sack Protection Society" in existence, sacks being lost every year to the amount of £20,000. The sack which the East India Directors have given Lord Ellenborough has cost his lordship nearly a similar sum.—Punch.

CURIOUS ATMOSPHERICAL PHENOMENON.

A Bath paper notices a curious fact respecting the weather last week. In the early part of Wednesday the mercury in the barometer had fallen considerably below "rain," but in the night, without any apparent cause (for the rain came down in torrents, and so continued during the whole of the succeeding day), the mercury rose to above "fair," at which point it has, almost without variation.

 Bishop Porteus, whom in all conversations about him George III. called the Queen's Bishop, was asked by her Majesty, at a period when all the ladies were employed when they had nothing better to do in knotting, whether she might knot on a Sunday. He answered, "You may not;" leaving her Majesty to decide whether, as knot and not were in sound alike, she was, or was not, at liberty so to employ herself on that day.

EGYPTIAN MODE OF TAMING VICIOUS HORSES. Burchhardt says that the Egyptian horses, unlike those of the pure blood of Arabis, are often vicious, and that he has seen such animals cured of the habit of biting, by presenting to them, while in the act of doing so, a leg of mutton just taken from the fire; the pain which a horse feels in biting through the hot meet, causes it, after a few lessons, to abandon the vicious habit.

Pope Leo the Tenth had often been heard to say, that he should die contented if he could gain possession of Parma and Placentia. When he won them, his joy was so excessive that it brought on a fever, of which he died.

A Belgian journal states that the number of leagues (the Belgian league is about three miles English) travelled over on the railroads of Belgium during the first nine months of the present year was 362,605, that the expense of working per league was, in 1841, 15fr. 67c.; 1842, 14f. 79c.; in 1843, 12f. 58c.; and that this year it is only 12f. 3c.

At an inquest held on Monday upon a person who survived for three days a dreadful injury of the brain, Mr. Wakley said that a short time ago a man was struck on the head with a pickase, and that although his brains escaped from the wound and besmeared his hand, he was able to run without assistance to the London Hospital. Upon arriving at the hospital he was saked how he felt when he replied that he was much better since he lost his brains. Mr. Wakley further said that it was almost incredible how long persons survived injuries of the brain.

Persian writers have always been fond of long pompous periods; and Abul-Fazel, who seems to have thought the essence of all good writing consisted in this, has been so eminently successful, that his nominatives and verbs are often posted at the distance of three pages from each other; and the space within is occupied with parenthesis within parenthesis, where the sense, if any, lies concealed behind such a number of intrenchments, that the Council of Trent would be puzzled to discover it.

THE FOLLY OF PRIDE.

THE FOLLY OF FRIDS.

The most beautiful flowers that ever graced the table or head of royalty, sprang from the earth. And whence sprang man? Let the Holy Bible speak:—"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." How vain then the pride of birth and ancestry! What a perfect delusion to be elated and puffed up, when he, from whom we are descended, was himself formed from the dust of the ground. How clearly, how forcibly does this say "pride was not made for man."

DR. JOHNSON'S IMITATIONS.

It happens unfortunately that Dr. Johnson's style is particularly easy of imitation, even by writers utterly destitute of his vigour of thought; and such imitators are intolerable. They bear the same resemblence to their model that the armour of the Chinese (as described by travellers, consisting of thick quilted cotton covered with stiff glazed paper) does to that of the ancient knights; equally glittering, bulky, and cumbersome, but destitute of the temper and firmness which was its sole advantage,—Whutely's Rhetorics.

THE PROCESSION, ST. MARY'S HILL, STAMFORD.

The special train, however, came on at a rapid rate, and reached the Camden-town station at ten minutes past five o'clock. From here the train was backed, and turned on the down line; and it reached the Euston terminus at twenty minutes past five o'clock.

Some parts of the journey were performed at very great speed. At Watford, where the train stopped for a few seconds, the Prince remarked to the Directors how very fast they had come. At the terminus her Majesty expressed to Mr. Glyn her satisfaction at the arrangements that had been made for her accommodation on the railway.

RETURN OF HER MAJESTY AND PRINCE ALBERT.

Her Majesty and Prince Albert arrived at the terminus of the London and Birmingham Railway on Friday afternoon, on their return from Burghley House, at twenty-five minutes past five o'clock.

A detachment of the 17th Regiment of Lancers, under the command of Lieut. Annes, arrived at the station before three o'clock, and remained until her Majesty arrived.

After the Royal carriages entered the station yard, the crowd, which efore was inconsiderable, greatly increased, and the most intense nterest was manifested to obtain a view of the Queen and her Illus-

The passage leading from the railway to the rooms appropriated for her Majesty's use, were, as on Tuesday last, covered with scarlet cloth.

Shortly before five o'clock, the workmen employed in the carpenters' shops and other departments of the railroad, amounting to upwards of 200, formed themselves into a line at the end of the terminus, and when the Royal cortègo arrived, they gave loud and hearty cheers, which were warmly responded to by those who had been admitted to witness her Majesty's arrival.

The Earl of Delawarr, Lord Chamberlain, accompanied her Maesty to town. The Earl of Liverpool and Lord Jersey left the station at Weedon about an hour before the Royal train, in order to be in readiness to receive her Majesty on her arrival at Windsor.

At Euston-square, her Majesty and Prince Albert were received by Mr. C. Glynn, the chairman of the Birmingham Railway Company, and several of the Directors, and after a short delay, conducted to the Royal carriage, followed by the members of the Court.

The Royal cavalcade then drove off at a rapid pace for the terminus of the Great Western Railway at Paddington, escorted by a detachment of the 17th Lancers. A train was in readiness to convey her Majesty to Slough en route to Windsor.

The reception which her Majesty and her Royal Consort received was most loyal and enthusiastic; the cheers of the populace, as the Royal carriages passed under the principal entrance to the station were unanimous, and appeared as if given from the heart.

Her Majesty, who did not appear at all fatigued by travelling, was heard to say that she had had a very pleasant journey.

The proceedings at Stamford were detailed last week. At the untrance of the borough a handsome arch was erected, and also an ecormous platform by the side of the road, for the accommodation of visitors and residents. It was surmounted by a flag, and inscribed, "Long live the Queen!" There must have been some 2000 or 3000 people there. It is needless to say that they cheered her Majesty most warmly as she passed. As the progress of the Royal cortège was necessarily somewhat slower, owing to the conflux of people, those who were stationed on the platform must have had a good view of which we annex an Engraving at page 332, was a gorgeous work in of the Queen. This platform extended to the corner of the roadpa it enters Stamford, the road to Burghley turning off to the right.

Our Engraving represents her Majesty and her loyal escort passing St. Mary's Hill, at Stamford, with the fine old church in the distance: it is principally of the thirteenth century: the height of the tower and steeple, to the top of the vane, is 163 feet. The church has some rich chapels, and an ancient canopied altar-tomb.

The next illustration shows the procession passing the handsome church of St. Michael, altered and modernised, by Mr. John Brown, architect, Norwich.

On Thursday, the Queen honoured the town of Stamford with a visit. At two o'clock most of the shops in the town were closed in honour of the occasion, and exactly at half-past two, the Royal cavalcade left Burghley. The first carriage, which was drawn by four horses, and contained the Queen, his Royal Highness Prince A e', the Marquis of Exeter, and Lady Portman, was preceded by the Lord Exeter's outriders. The carriage was an open one, and every one had an excellent view of the Royal and illustrious party. In the second carriage, which was also an open one, were seated Sir Robert Peel, Earl de la Warr, Lady Sophia Cecil, and the Hon. Mrs. Spencer, and Lady Middleton. The Royal cavalcade proceeded through St. Martin's-street, St. Mary's-street, St. John's-street, up Highstreet, to the west entrance of the Infirmary, and then by St Leonard's.

BUINS AF WOT 40 PE

The cavalcade returned in front of the Infirmary through St. Paul's-street and Ironmonger-street, Broad-street, and Red Lion-square to Burghley. During the Royal progress through the town the bells of the various churches of the borough rang merry peals.

Every window along the entire route was decorated with Royal standards, union jacks, streamers, and flags of every description, or some other token of love and attachment. When opposite the Bede House, in Broad-street, the carriage in which were the Queen and the Prince stopped for a moment, which afforded the Marquis of Exeter an opportunity of drawing the attention of her Majesty to that excellent institution.

The streets through which her Majesty proceeded were crowded by her loyal and devoted subjects, who evinced their affection by hearty greetings, which were acknowledged by her Majesty in a most gracious manner.

On Jeaving the borough the Royal and Noble party proceeded to Wothorpe, where they inspected the ruins of the mansion and other antiquities in the neighbourhood. This seat is stated by Camden to have been built by Thomas Cecil, the first Earl of Exeter, who pleasantly said, he built it only to retire to out of the dust, while his great house at Burghley was sweeping. After the Restoration, the Duke of Buckingham, with his family resided in it for many years. There are only the turrets, (with cupolas similar to those at Burghley) and the fragments of some walls remaining, which are shown in 1758-9, and the materials employed in building the stables at Burghley.

The arrival of her Majesty at Burghley was reported last week; as

The arrival of her Majesty at Burghley was reported last week; as was the ceremony of the christening of the infant daughter of the Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter, on Wednesday. (See page 316.) The ceremony is represented in our engraving. After it had concluded, her Majesty kissed the young godchild of her Royal Consort. Prince Albert presented the infant with a very rich and handsome gold cup after the ceremony.

The cup stands about fifteen inches high, and bears a crownion the top of the cover. The sides are ornamented with figures of Cupid bearing cymbals, and the whole is elaborately chased. This work of art bears the following inscription in the three compartments into which it is divided:—

confectionery, reflecting great credit upon the skill and taste of the manufacturer, Mr. Oswin, of Red Lion-square, a native of Stamford. Its weight was about 60lbs., exclusive of the ornaments. The cake was surmounted by a font, with a white satin flag, fringed with silver, at each corner. The height of the cake was 2tt. 2in., and its circumference 57 inches. Its decorations were very superb, and, placed upon a handsome silver stand, it was, altogether, a splendid affair.

Her Majesty's visit to the hitchen at Purchland in its content of the cake was a splendid affair.

Her Majesty's visit to the kitchen at Burghley was incidentally mentioned in our last. This apartment, as we intimated at page 308, is a portion of the original mansion, built by the great Lord Burghley. It is a noble room situated on the south side of a spacious court. It stands at the east end of the mansion, and measures 48 feet by 30; the roof is very lofty, and has a groined ceiling, of earlier style even than the old mansion. At one end is a large painting of a carcase of beef—an exhibition of the true ensign armorial of English hospitality; though to place the semblance amidst so much reality, seems extrinsic. Lastly, the engraving at page 332, shows the Buffet of Plate in the Great Dining Hall, described at page 313, last week. (Continued on page 332.)

WYON'S ROYAL EXCHANGE MEDAL.

The "Jetteru" designed to commemorate the opening of the Royal Exchange was executed by W. Wyon, Esq., R.A. It bears on the obverse a bust of her Majesty in high relief, with the legend, "ROYAL EXCHANGE, OPENED BY H. M. QUEEN VICTORIA, OCT. 28, EXCHANGE, OPENED BY H. M. QUEEN VICTORIA, OCT. 28, 1844." The reverse is composed of a wreath of oak and laurel, which is displayed three shields—the bearings of the City of London, the Mercers' Company, and Sir Thomas Gresham; the latter, surmounted by his crest—the famous Grasshopper. The legend consists of the words, "First Stone Laid by H. R. H. Prince Albert, Jany. 17, 1842." Of this medal, 1500 have been struck, and 200 more are in course of preparation, for distribution by the Gresham Committee, amongst the guests present at the opening of the Exchange, and persons, both at home and abroad, of high comthe Exchange, and persons, both at home and abroad, of high commercial reputation. The medal—as we prefer to call it—is of silver, the surface of the metal burnished, and the raised parts dead. Our cut has been enlarged from the original for the sake of greater clearness.

The committee, feeling that so important an event should be celebrated by the execution of a higher work of art, than the mere striking of a "Jetteau," have ordered Mr. Wyon to prepare a large medal, whose beauty of design and workmanship shall be commensurate whose beauty of design and workmanship shall be commensurate with the great event it is intended to commemorate. The model submitted by Mr. Wyon, and which has been approved by the committee, has, on the one side, the full length figure, in profile, of the Queen, from the statue by Lough, which is to be placed in the centre of the Merchants' Area. Her Majesty is represented standing in her Robes of State, holding in her left hand the Orb, and in her right which is inclined downwards, the sceptre of the Dove; behind the figure is a portion of the Quadrangle of the Royal Exchange. Certainly, if industry in the publication of sporting realities in the class of art most appropriate for the illustration of such subjects be a recommendation to popularity, Mr. Moore attains it beyond doubt, and has a good right to call his "nobby" establishment the Bees-wing sallery. He is for ever working with the bee's wing. We have here three most spirited portraits of three of the most remarkable animals that ever made speed famous, and taught the lightning of rapidity to play along the turf.

The first is "The Emperor," the winner of the Ascot Cup, named in hospitable honour of the Emperor of Russia, who, during his presence in England, by his munificent donation to the race-course, well deserved the compliment from the sporting world. He was formerly called The Defence colt; but, having been promoted in his title, and won the cup, now requires no defence whatever. His portrait is here beautifully drawn by Shayer, and coloured to the life.

What ho! Foigh-a-ballagh! Clear the way! That is the English way of saying it in Irish—Clear the way for Foigh-a-Ballagh. "By Japers, yer honor" says a Paddy at our elbow, "There's small need of that same; Foigh-a-Ballagh has cleared the way for himself." And so he has; and a fine rollicking Irish dandy of stepper he is and looks; he beats Banagher, and Banagher beats the devil—and so we have small chance for his opponents. Nothing could be more true and spirited than the portrait of him, which, although just now staring us in the face, looks as if it could run away from us in a moment.

A third exquisite reflex of horseflesh in prints is Alice Hawthorn—the darling of the turf, and the winner of forty-three (!) cups! Who would not be proud to drink out of a cup won by Alice Hawthorn? It is enough to say that she is to be framed and glazed to make every body run after her likeness. All three prints are capital, and now reader Foigh-a-Ballagh for Mr. Moore.

LITERATURE.

The Post-office London Directory, 1845. Kelly and Co. Twenty years have made strange alteration in the bulk of this almost indispensable Directory. Well do we remember the mean, spare volume of other days, with its long lines of large type, and its shabby sheepskin binding; in place of which we have here a ponderous, large octavo volume, of some 1900 pages, of two and three columns each, of small type, comprising, inter alia, directories, official, street, commercial, law, court, parliamentary, postal, City, conveyance, banking—thus combining the advantages of the old "Directory" with those of the "Court Guide"—the east with the west—and comprising all the information which the merchant or trader, or any other London resident or visitor, can reasonably expect to find; and, by excellent classification and arrangement, any portion of this information may be found without difficulty. In this volume, the 46th annual publication, the Street Directory contains twenty-eight pages, or upwards of 4000 names, more than that for 1844. The Postal Directory, of instruction as to the despatch of letters and newspapers to all parts of the world, and the list of the principal places in England and Wales, with the view to facilitate the operations of the Money Order Office—have also been greatly extended. Among other additions, we perceive some important and interesting statistics of London—as the are in acres, population, and assessment, and a statement from the Occupations' Abstract of the Census of 1841. The "Directory" is, in fine, as complete as untiring industry and vigilance can make it; for they have uniformly kept pace with the increase of the number and extent of our metropolitan and national establishments and interests. The Literary and Scientific Register and Almanack for 1845. By J. W. Gutch. Simpkin and Co.

This is a kind of Register of Facts and Information, such as must be useful to all persons of an inquiring turn of mind. Moreover, it contains a host of aids to general conversation, which often flags or comes to a stand-still for want of some definite information on an abstract subject. Thus, we have an Almanack, with anniversaries of inventions; a list of customs duties; the usual calendarial and commercial lists; a compendium of facts, data, or "constants," as Mr. Babbage would term them, in acoustics, aerial phenomena, agriculture, anatomy, argling, architecture, astronomy (very copious), biblical chronology, building, chemistry, domestic economy, gardening, geography, heat, hydraulics, insurance, mathematics, mechanics, mensuration, miscellanea, optics, painting, pathology, phrenology, physiology, statistics, therapeutics, useful tables, weights, measures, &c. To this enumeration we should add our note of confidence in the authenticity and excellent arrangement of the information. This pocket-book, like its predecessors, is dedicated, by permission, to Prince Albert; and it appears to be, in every respect, worthy of his Royal Highness' distinguished patronage, for its very extensive sphere of utility. of utility.

Instructions to Young Sportsmen in all that Relates to Guns and Shooting. By Lieut.-Col. P. Hawker. Ninth Edition.

To give a note of commendation to this work, of which nine editions, numbering more than as many thousands, have been sold, would be supererogatory. The original edition was printed some thirty years since, and the book has gone on increasing in bulk with the author's trial and experience; taking for his aim, "particular cirections for (what gentlemen least understand) getting access to wild birds of every description." The work has, of late, been in many parts materially altered and enlarged: and the Colonel considers that the improvements introduced in this edition may be considered, in some degree, as "finishing lessons to those young sportsmen who have done him the honour to attend to his earlier instructions." Among the entirely new matter, we find detailed accounts of Greenfield's new machinery for making waterproof copper caps, of Colonel Hawker's improvement on Wilkinson's musket, the patent breaching musket, &c.; with several pages of valuable observations on coastgunning, more especially on the Hampshire coast. The following is the

POSTSCRIPT ON PARTRIDGE SHOOTING.

P.S., 1844.—When this group was drawn, (several years since), it was not an uncommon occurrence to bring home from fifty to sixty brace of partridges in a day. But within these few years the shooting has so fallen off, that we can razely get our ten brace even on the 1st of September. Many people say, "How do you account for this? Why, the reason is obvious, from a combination of circumstances, all against the sportsmen; viz., the march of intellect in poaching—a sale-of-game act without a summary proceeding against trespassers who are without guns—the increased demand for partridges' eggs—the facility—the farmers cuttung up the grass banks for fuel, and thereby driving the birds to feed in open fields, at the mercy of hawks, wet weather, and scy hes-putting among their seed-wheat vitriol (to prevent smut,) which poisons many birds that would otherwise be left to breed—and mowing their wheat, by which means they destroy all fine stubbles for shooting! In short, the only wonder is that we have any birds at all; and the scarcity will, no doubt, increase every year, unless some alteration be made in the game-laws, and the landlords adopt certain restrictions in their leases, taking care, at the same time, to make amends to the farmer for any new claims they may choose to introduce; or he will either destroy the game himself, or encourage his labourers to do so."

Knight's Weekly Volume—X. to XXII. C. Knight and Co. This already popular series of Reading for All proceeds well. Possibly, the selection of Tasso's "Jerusalem Delivered," translated by Fairfax (X. and XI.), is too much in advance of the reader; but it is a very venial error. Mr. Rennie's "Bird Architecture" deservedly forms No. XI. The two succeding numbers complete Miss Lane's "Englishwoman in Egypt," and Mr. Davis's "The Chinese." No. XV. is devoted to a reprint of the volumes on "The Elephant," in the charming series entitled "The Menageries," in the "Library of Entertaining Knowledge:" it is, indeed, a most fascinating work, from the first to the last page. We are by no means so well pleased with No. XVI., "Rambles by Rivers," by James Thorne, reprinted from "The Penny Magazine." The "rivers" are the Duddon, the Mole, the Adur, Arun and Wey, the Lea and the Dove. This is, throughout, a very flimsy and unsatisfactory performance, and, by some degrees, the least meritorious volume yet printed in the series. The author affects to be above his task as a topographer, while he proves himself unequal to it in information. The next work, XVII. and XVIII., is of more sterling worth: it is entitled "Sketches of the History of Literature and Learning in England from the Norman Conquest to the Accession of Elizabeth;" in which the author, Mr. Craik, brings to his labour untiring research, and admirable tact in illustrating points of popular interest. The first volume extends to Piers Ploughman; and although the chronicles of our early literature are not uniformly attractive, by aid of "the improved archæological scholarship of recent times," Mr. Craik has enriched his survey copiously with new lights. One, however, appeared to have escaped him, viz., a communication made to the Royal Society of Literature, in 1839, maintaining the existence of Gildas, our earliest historian, to be a fiction. The work, excepting in its arrangement, is of a cyclopedian character, and must prove acceptable to a very large class of reade KNIGHT'S WEEKLY VOLUME-X. to XXII. C. Knight and Co.

various quarters, I observe the name of W. Hone, and notice it that I may take the opportunity of recommending his Every-day Book and Table Book, to those who are interested in the preservation of our national and local customs. By these very curious publications their compiler has rendered good service in an important department of literature; and he may render yet more if he obtain the encouragement which he well deserves."

No. XIII. of the "Library" contains an orignal work—"Notes and Sketches of New South Wales, during a residence in that colony from 1839 to 1844," by Mrs. Charles Meredith; the preface being dated from Van Diemen's Land. The scenery, people, and the various objects which strike a new-comer as novel or remarkable, are described in a very lively vein, and the book is altogether an appropriate and valuable contribution to the series. A few years since its contents would have been expanded to an expensive octavo volume.

POINTS AND PICKINGS OF INFORMATION ABOUT CHINA AND THE CHINESE. By the Author of "Soldiers and Sailors." Grant and

Griffith.

The younglings of the next generation will, doubtless, be better acquainted with China, than are the children of a larger growth, in our day; and, towards this end, the present volume will contribute its quota of information, cleverly picked from books of travels and recent records; for, the author's experience, we opine, scarcely extends beyond his own room. The voyage is, however, confessedly suppositious: it is narrated in a lively style, which the author evidently fears may lead to his descriptions being impugned; and we must add that somewhat less of the gasconade would have improved the work; for example, it is beneath the reformed manner of writing books for children to say, "Were I called on to decide what people beneath the stars are most worthy of estimation, I should certainly point to my own countrymen." Again, sentences are occasionally obscure, as the following: "There is little doubt that the Chinese nation is the oldest in the world, if we except that of the Jews, but you must know something of what they (?) say of themselves." With these incidental blemishes, the volume is very amusing and instructive: it is profusely illustrated with woodcuts.

THE STAR OF THE COURT. By Miss S. BUNBURY. Grant and Griffith.

Griffith.

This is a narrative of "the Maid of Honour and Queen of England, Anne Boleyn," written for young persons, with the intention of illustrating the frightful evils of ambition and vanity in the character, history, and fate of the fair maid of Norfolk. The historical facts are related in a very entertaining manner, and the moral purpose continually kept in view, so that the book may very safely be placed in the hands of the young. It is embellished with an illuminated title-page, a portrait, engraved initials, &c.

Songs and Hymns for the Nursery. Burns.

PICTORIAL LIVERPOOL; a new and complete Handbook for Resident, Visitor, and Tourist. H. Lacey.

This is a very neatly-compiled picture of the annals, commerce, shipping, institutions, public buildings, sights, &c., of the Modern Tyre, as Liverpool has been felicitously termed, from its extensive commercial and maritime connexions: it is very ably put together, but is almost disfigured by some engravings of very questionable execution. With this exception, the work is entitled to high praise.

THE BEAUTIES OF THE OPERA. Parts VI. and VII. Bogue, Fleet-street.

The Beauties of the Opera. Parts VI. and VII. Bogue, Fleet-street.

This truly elegant work maintains its attractions. Part VI. is a continuation of "The Huguenots," and presents a nicely engraved portrait of Treillet-Nathan as Valentine in that piece. The prose, in many instances, is more a translation than a description of the plot and incidents of the French libretto, and affords a very lively notion of the original, both by its own fidelity, and the illustrative woodcuts which are inserted in the text.

Part VII. has the ballet of "Ondine" for its subject, with a portrait of the fascinating Cerito, as the Nymph of the Waters, such a one as the creator of the character, M. le Baron la Motte Fouqué, would have hailed as the realization of his supernatural dream—for it was he who, in his "Undine," first gave to the world that modern description of the "Naiad" which has been embodied by Cerito so felicitously. Independent of the engraved portrait, we have another from the pen of the writer, which describes Cerito truly, and which, for its graphic fidelity, we here transcribe:—"The dancing of Cerito has been particularly germane to British audiences, and for her have been produced the two most original ballets that have ever given fame to the Italian Opera in the Haymarket—"Alma" and "Ondine," which have been constantly performed; and, to judge by the applause that has greeted and followed them, have been

The numbers are got up in the elegant style of their predecessors, but there is too much bad, hard, French drawing about many of the illustrations. Some of the borderings are extremely beautiful—viz.,

MUSIC.

MUSICAL STATISTICS OF THE METROPOLIS.

MUSICAL STATISTICS OF THE METROPOLIS.

The following enumeration will afford the best answer to those grumblers who are eternally deploring the low state of musicin England, and comparing its present degradation? with its former grandeur. In the season—and that is nearly all the year round—what city can boast of such a bill of fare as the following? We shall begin, by grace, with that theatre which her Majesty so particularly patronses—the Italian Opera. Where can be heard such a congregation of the first artistes in the world? Not elsewhere is our reply. Where can we hear the immortal works of Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Weber, &c., performed as they are at the Philharmonic; or the sublimer conceptions of the giant Handel at the Ancient Concerts, or Exeter Hall? Does not the Societa Armonica prove the love for, and high state of the art amongst us? The same question will apply to the Society of British Musicians. Look, moreover, at the thousand and one concerts by day and by night—the matinées musicales—the svirées musicales—the quartet réunions—the madrigal meetings—the glee clubs—the melodists, &c.; and then cant about the want of a lover for music in the land of Purcell! The quantity of music printed in this country, and the exorbitant price paid for it, alone would prove that it is almost a mania with us; and go into any society, do we not find amateurs who can rival the most distinguished professors in either vocal or instrumental ability? There are more musical amateurs in this metropolis than are to be found in all the world beside.

THE THEATRES.

HAYMARKET.

"Natural Theology;" the Latin quotations being translated: this volume, it need scarcely be added, is a "pearl of great price" in the series. No. XX. is another of Mr. Craik's contributions—the first of three volumes to be devoted to the "History of British Commerce," reprinted from the "Pictorial History of Brighand;" this is a most laborious production, more to be prized as a book of reference than entertainment: in a long note, we perceive old Camden is caught tripping, so that Mr. Craik himself must take our correction in good part. No. XXI. is "A Volume of Varieties," by the Editor, and containing some very agreeable papers, occasionally of the magazine cast—all reprinted from various works. No. XXII., "The Camp of Refuge," is the first volume of "Old England Novelets:" it is a tate of the Norman times—four years after the Battle of Hastings—the scenes being the Grand Abbey of Crowland, the Great House at Ely, &c., in the Fen country: the period is not attractive overmuch.

Murray's Home and Colonial Library, Nos. XII. and XIII.

The first of the numbers contains Dr. Southey's Lives of Oliver Cromwell and John Bunyan, reprinted from the "Quarterly Review," it we mistake not, with the advantage of additional notes. Southey was, altogether, the best prose writer of his day; and, although the "Lives" before us are somewhat too discursive (from their being written for a review) to be considered as regular biographies, they, on that account, are the more attractive, from the extraordinary mass of illustrative aneedote which author and editor have here collected. At the close of the life of Bunyan, is Dr. Southey's honourable notice for one towards whom he was, doubtless, embittered in earlier life; it is really worth quoting: "In one of the volumes collected from its really worth quoting: "In one of the volumes collected from the worth quoting: "In one of the volumes collected from the worth quoting: "In one of the volumes collected from the worth quoting: "In one of the volumes collected from the worth quoting

The new comedy of "Old Heads and Young Hearts," by Mr. Bourcicault, produced at this house on Monday evening, is the very bust which has appeared for years—an assertion possibly borne out by its triumphant success. Year after year have comedies been brought out, and the same date has seen them quietly on the shelf. Some of them had very fair plots—others most brilliant dialogue: but, in spite of puffs and placards, boxes grew thinner and receipts less each night of their representation, until they retired altogether to be heard of no more. The reason was, that there was in them no attempt to depict the manners of the day; or, rather, there was an attempt, resulting from imagination, and received conventional notions. Persons came to see existing society pourtrayed, and were disappointed; or else they were wearied with long heavy dialogue and leaden sentiment. This will not apply to "Old Heads and Young Hearts." The writing was sparkling and pungent; the portrayal of character natural and unaffected: aud in the scenes of society introduced, nothing was outraged by ignorance of the class from which they were drawn.

natural and unaffected: and in the scenes of society introduced, nothing was outraged by ignorance of the class from which they were drawn.

It is unnecessary to detail the plot: we will mention merely the characters. The two chief parts of the piece, Jesse Rural, a kind and simple country curate, and Tom Coke, a fine-spirited Yorkshire squire, were in the hands of Messrs. Farren and Webster. The former was beautifully played: the old man's joy at his mistaken contrivances for promoting everybody's happiness, and subsequent distress when he finds how his innocent mismanagement has turned out, was in the highest style of acting. Nor was Mr. Webster less effective as the warm-hearted countryman—more especially in the fifth act, respecting his reconciliation with his brother. Littleton Coke, a young briefless barrister, was not sustained with any remarkable effect by Mr. Charles Mathews. His first scene struck us as most inanely played; and he hurried some of the speeches with a careless rapidity, which entirely destroyed their point. As the piece proceeded he improved greatly, possibly warmed up by the continuous applause. Colonel Rocket, an old Indian officer, was admirably enacted by Mr. Strickland; Mr. Holl showed average ability as Lord Charles Roebuck, son of Lord Pompion (Mr. Tilbury); and Mr. Buckstone's Bob was amazingly droil. The female characters were Lady Alice Hawthorn (a high-spirited meteor of fashion, who insists upon being balloted into the "omnibus box"), most spiritedly played by Madame Vestris, as was Miss Rocket by Miss Julia Bennett. Lady Pompion also found a very efficient supporter in Mrs. W, Clifford. Some trifling disapprobation in the second act was immediately suppressed: and then the comedy went with continued bursts of cheering, until the curtain fell amidst a whirlwind of applause. Mr. Bourcicault, in reply to the calls of "author!" bowed from a private box; and thee whole of the dramatis personæ subsequently appeared on the stage.

There were so many clever things said that it is d

Lit. Gold is the Medean bath of youth, possessing also a magnetic attraction for every cardinal virtue, while all the plagues of Egypt are shut up in one English word, and that is poverty; the exhibition of which, like that of the Gorgon's head, turns the hearts of your dearest friends to atone.

Roe. Can May-fair legislation so repeal the laws of nature? By Jove! the west-end, at last, will cut the sun because it rises in the east, and lives by wax light.

Lit. You, perhaps, may never see the world as I do, Charles, because I am poor—but a rich man's view of life is bounded by his parasites—he feels but through his glove and thinks all things are soft.

Tom. Since I came into his city I haven't seen a fair inch of blue sky, or a blade of green grass. Stop—I did though—yes, I did see a puir sickly plot penned up in a place they called a square, looking, for all the world, as if they'd put nature in a pound for straying into town.

Old Rocket's disbelief in the battle of Hastings because there was no account of it in the Army List, was also very effective, as well as his anger at the Earl's allusion to his ancestors, who came over after the battle, in which the old soldier could not see much credit. This produced a round of applause.

LYCEUM.

"A Trip to Kissengen"—which mellifluous name indicates the locality of some German baths, in fashion with our autumnal tourists—is the name of a new farce, produced towards the close of last week at this house, and with triumphant success. It is stated to be the first production of Mr. T. Taylor, of Trinity College, Cambridge; and, if this be the case, gives strong indications of a very fresh and original vein of dramatic writing, with much less reliance on conventional stage business and hacknied situations than is usually the case. The story may be thus told:—Count de Carambole (Mr. Wigan), a foreign scamp, such as might have been seen lately hanging about the low hells of Leicester-square, and his wife, Fifine (Mrs. Wigan), arrive at the principal gasthaus at Kessingen in danger of being arrested for some bank torgeries upon letters of credit, which have been discovered at Frankfort. At the same time arrives Mr. Crisis (Mr. Keeley), the "exclusive correspondent" of the "Scourge," London newspaper, who has left his wife in the dismal solitudes of Herne Bay, and come to the baths of Kessingen on a wild spree. Fifine pretends, at the table d'hôte, to be struck with him, and, finding out who he is, tells him that he is in jeopardy from some articles which have appeared in the "Scourge," reflecting on the Bayarian Goven ment; but that, to serve him, she will exchange her husband's passport for his own—of course, out of devotion. Mr. Crisis agrees to this; and we next see him as Count de Carambole, playing the part of a galbant fancer in front of the bathhouse. In the meantime his wife (Mrs. Keeley), accompanied by her uncle, Mr. Lonely (Mr. Turner), has arrived at Kissengen, and finds her husband flirting with Fifine, just as he is arrested for the Count de Carambole, upon the strength of his boasting and his false passport. Mrs. Cri

A drama, called "Prediction," was produced here on Monday evening, which, we were somewhat disappointed to find, was merely another version of the "Mysterious Stranger," now performing at the Adelphi, and scarcely so effective. Miss Emma Stanley is a very clever young lady, but she does not play the assumed Evil One equal to Madame Celeste. Her performance, nevertheless, was highly creditable; as was that of the lover of the piece, sustained by Mr. Walter Lacy. Mr. Granby, a useful member of this company, also played carefully; but there was nothing in the other characters to call for any particular remark. The piece went tolerably well, and the audience were perfectly satisfied; but it will not do to rely upon alone, in drawing an audience.

Mr. Balfe bids fair to rival Donizetti in the number of his operatic productions—for between the Opera Comique, at Paris, Drury-lane, and the Princess's here, he contrives currente calamo to keep three establishments constantly supplied with something new, and has not made a single Masco yet. On Wednesday last an English version of "Les Quartre_Fils Aymon," the title of the libretto which was performed at Paris last summer, was produced at this house, and proved successful in the highest degree. It is called "The Castle of Aymon," or "The Four Brothers," but the story bears no resemblance to the legend so well known in Germany as the "Haimonskinder;" it seems rather to have been founded upon our own juvenile romance of "Jack and his Eleven Brothers," in earlier days which we recollect, touched our sensibility mightily. The present treatment of the subject, however, takes a humorous turn, which has been most felicitously brightened by the wit of the composer. The plot of the piece may be bright told.

our sensibility mightily. The present treatment of the subject, however, takes a humorous turn, which has been most felicitously brightened by the wit of the composer. The plot of the piece may be briefly told:

The four heroes of the piece are the sons of an old Bretagne nobleman, who has made them travel, each by a different route, and appointed them all to return on a certain day to open a chest suppose to the contain all his treasure. On this day the action of the piece commences, and they all enter their ancestral castle dressed exactly alike. The quintet which they sing with their Old Steward, was encored, and so was a pretty romance sung by Allen, who plays Olivier, the eldest of the brothers. When the chest is opened, nothing is found but a document wherein the deceased parent informs them that he has nothing to leave but the bare walls of the castle, and his advice to preserve brotherly unity. Report, however, has given a fictious splendour to affairs, and a wealthy, miserly nobleman, the Baron de Beaumanoir, has hastened to the castle, on the day the chest is opened, in the hope of uniting his daughter to the eldest brother, now Duc at Aymon. The Old Steward, anxious to keep up the bonour of the house, makes the Baron believe that his master's riches are inexhaustible, and that he is in fact the sole heir to the late Duke, his three brothers being dead.

The second act takes place in the garden of the Baron's castle. He wishes to marry his daughter Hermine to Olivier. Unfortunately, there is an obstacle in the way of the marriage, for Hermine, to save her three female cousins from a convent, for which her father has destined them, has made a vow that they shall all three be married before her own nupitials take place. A pretty, singular, chattering quintet occurs among these four young ladies and their attendant. Then comes the "gen" of the opera, an admirable buffor due to yet the opera, an admirable buffor due to the second and the effect produced by one singer rapidly repeating the phrase which has

Mr. Beverley.

Altogether Mr. Maddox has good reason to be pleased with his liberal speculation.

We are very fond of going to Astley's, if it be only to revive bygone feelings and associations. We will not, however, deny that we feel some small pleasure apart from this in visiting it at present—that we even laugh at the time-honoured jokes of the Clown, with a dash offormer joyousness in the outburst—that it is the only theatre where the spangles do not appear less bright, the ladies less lovely, the processions less imposing, the gas less sparkling, than formerly. We do not wish, it is true, to go there very, very often, for then the charm would quite depart; but we look upon a visit to Astley's, as a dinner from roast sucking pig—an excellent thing now and then.

They were rare times when we used first togo to Astley's—we mean for ourselves, not for the world at large—to the greater part of which they were possibly just the same as they are at present. But we saw everything then through a wonderful medium: we respected the very sawdust as a substance of a marvellous nature: and we made bows to the box-keeper, and called him "Sir." The Clown, too—how we loved him: next to Punch there was nobody that we had never spoken to, whom we took into such intimate acquaintanceship. We nave never heard jests since that pleased us like his did, or that we thought so sharp—no, not amongst the first wits of London. And Mr. Widdicombe, whom we then conceived to be the commanding officer of some royal cavalry regiment, just managing the ring, in all condecension, for amusement and change—our feeling towards him was something like respect. We had not then learnt that he was an ordinary person, nor should we have dared to make rude jokes and intricate calculations about his age. Such would have been utter profanity. One of the good old fashioned pieces, such as we used to see—not Wars in China and Affghanistan—was produced here last week, called "The Royal Fox Hunt: or, the Race Horse, and Life's Course of Man and Steed"—we quote the bill. We will not attempt to give the plot. The moment we reduced an Astley piece to the u

MADAME DULCKEN'S SOIRRES MUSICALES.—This lady gave the first of a series of musical entertainments at her house in Harley-street, on Wednesdaynight. The concert opened with Haydn's quatuor in G major (No.81), for two violns, viola, and violoncello, which were played by Messrs. Willy, Goffrie, Loder, and Luces. It was executed with great spirit, and a thorough feeling of its chaste and simple beauties, and elicited considerable applause. MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(Prom. our City Correspondent.)

The Consol Market has displayed an upward tendency during the week, the advance having been gradual from 100½ to it to the closing price of 100½. On Wednesday a few bargains were done at 100½, but this induced some realising, and the price receded. The Exchequer Bill Market also improved from 57 60 (Afonday's quotation) to 63 65 on Wednesday, but this has since yielded to sales, and the closing quotation is 64 62. The demand for money having somewhat decreased within the last few days, is the assigned cause for the rise, but the market is any thing but firm for either Consols or Exchequer Bills at the present advanced quotations. The variations in the heavy stock have been very triding, and the closing quotations are, Three per Cent. Reduced, 99½; Three-and-a-Quarter per Cent., 102½; Bank Stock, 206; India Bonds, 81 to 83; India Stock, 288; Long Annuities, 12.

There has been some animation in the Foreign Market during the week, and transactions in Spanish have been numerous, it not heavy, in amount. Monday's market was steady, but on Theeday the Actives Block advanced to 24½, and the Three per Cents. 103½; Ench Perty for a fall, however, changed the prices on Wednesday, by selling on the strength of some unfavourable rumours; and the price receded to 24 to ½ for the Actives; the Five per Cents. 55½ to ½. This price has again receeed upon the news of an insurrection in Castle; but the quotation was not materially worse, the Actives closing at 2½, and the Threes per Cents. 55 to ½. Dutch Two-and-a-Hall per Cents. Cose at 62½; Four per Cent. Certificates, 97; Five per Centa., 99½; and Portuguese, which has not recovered last week's depression, closes as 63½.

The Railway Market, although steady in regard to prices, still continues heavy, and business is nearly suspended on the newly-projected lines. The South Western Railway propose to capitalise their shares, &c., conver

THE BUCGHLEY CHISTENING CAKE.

HER MAJESTY'S VISIT TO BURGHLEY.

At the Ball at Burghley, on Thursday evening, Adams's band was in attendance, and performed in the presence of her Majesty and Prince Albert, an entirely new selection of quadrilles, polkas, waltzes, &c.

A correspondent has forwarded us the accompanying anecdote: A lady, residing not an hundred miles from Wolverton, was commanded to be at Weedon on Tuesday, should the Queen stop there, as her rervices would be required. The lady started for the occasion; but, to her great grief, found the train would proceed to Rugby, and not stop at Weedon. Her feelings may be better imagined than described when she heard this, and, of course, all hope for her was lost. When near Crick, the whistle sounded, and the train slack-ened its pace; and from some cause, which proved fortunate in the end, it eventually stopped, and the lady alighted, determined to remain there rather than proceed. To use her own words, she was heedless of the consequences of being on the line, and burst into tears. An engine-driver near at hand saw her distress, and on hearing her case, offered to take her back to Weedon on his engine, if she had the courage for the journey. She gladly accepted the offer, although in a delicate state of health, and arrived at Weedon in time, having performed the journey in four minutes and a half. This, we believe, is the first instance of a lady riding on an engine, and some of our fair ones would faint at the bare idea of such a flying visit through the air—standing, not seated.

"THE COTTAGER'S DAUGHTER." .

" You remember El'en."-Irish Melody.

You remember Etlen, our bamlet's pride,
How methly one blessed her humble lst,
When the strenger, William, had made her his bride,
And Love was the light of their lowly cot.
Together they toiled through winds and rains,
I'll William at length, in sadness said,
"We must seek our fortune on other plains;"
Then, sighing, she left her lowly shed.

The wind blows cold, the hour is late:"

SMAKSPEARE'S JUG AND CANE.

SHAKSPEARR'S JUG.

The first of these accredited relics of Shakspeare was formerly the property of Edwin Lees, Esq., of Forthampton Cottages, near Tewkesbury, Gloucestershire, and was sold by auction in May, 1841. It has since been exhibited in the west of England, and has attracted very considerable attention. The accompanying details are from a handbill, printed by Mr. Bennett, of Tewkesbury:—

This Jug is of cream-coloured earthenware, about nine inches in height, and sixteen round in the largest part, and somewhat in the shape of a modern coffee por. It is divided longitudinelly into eight compartments, each horizontally subdivided; and within these the principal dities of the Grecian Mythology are represented in rather bold relief. Jupiter and Juno, Bacchus, Diana, Mercury Apollo, Mara, &c... are all plainly distinguishable by their thrones, chariota, or characteristic animal attendants.

To preserve the interior from dust, and the rim from secident, a silver top and edging were added about forty years ago, with a small medallion of Shakupeare upon it, inscribed "William Shakupeare, at the age of 40." The precious relic is kept beneath a carved covering, shown in the engraving.

medallion of Shakspeare upon it, inscribed "William Shakspeare, at the age of 40." The precious relic is kept beneath a carred coveriog, shown in the engraving.

As this interesting relic was never, until within the last six years, out of the possession of the collateral decendants of the "immortal bard of Avon," it becomes necessary to trace its history. I's possessor (Mr. Lees) purchased it from a daughter of the late James Kingsbury, Erq., of Tewkesbury, whose wife inherited it from her mother. This lady, whose name was Richardson, was, through her husband, whom she ru vived, related to the Hart family, direct descendants of Shakspeare's sister Joan; and the Harts, having fallen into depressed circumstances, gave up the Jux to their relative, Mr. Richardson, in compensation for a considerable debt owing to him, about 1767. Sarah Hart, who thus disposed of the Jug, was the fifth in deacent from Shakspeare's sister Joan, who married William Hart, of Stratford-upon-Avon, and previously to this the Harts had constantly kept the Jug as brought into their family by Joan Shakspeare.

It appears, from Shakspeare's will, that he left his sister Joan all his wearing apparel, together with the house in which he was born; besides which, other property that had been Shakspeare's was devised to the Hart family by Lady Barnard, the grand-day ghter of Shakspeare, in whom the line of Shakspeare's own body terminated. It, therefore, becomes certain, that various relics of Shakspeare were at one time in their possession. Of these, however, none appear to have been treasured with any care except this Jug, which was ever denominated Shakspeare's, as having truly belonged to the immortal bard. The facts here stated, however, challenge the fullest investigation—the Hart family yet existing in Tewkesbury, and the Jug having been long any noticed and describ d by Sir Richard Phillips, in the Monthly Magazine, and in Mr. Bennett's Tewkesbury History and Register.

The present possessor of the Jug, Mrs. Fletcher, a descendant of the i

NOOKS AND CORNERS OF OLD ENGLAND.

ABBEY OF ST. BENE'T'S, NORFOLK.

ABBEY OF ST. BENE'T'S, NORFOLK.

The county of Norfolk literally teems with ecclesiastical antiquities: her very villages, in many instances, can boast of a plurality of churches, while the magnitude of her monastic institutions attests the piety or pride of bygone generations, and offers an interesting study to the modern antiquary.

Constructed at an epoch more remote than the generality of similar structures in the same county—endowed with large possessions, occupying a fertile and well-watered site. and combining within itself the conventual characteristics of a religious house with the solidity of a Norman stronghold—the Abbey of St. Bene't's appears at a very early period to have borne a high degree of importance as an ecclesiastical foundation, and to have assumed a very belligerent aspect as a forthied place. Founded by royalty (in the reign of Canute), we find it seasoning the defensive, and stoutly resisting a very unceremonious visit from royslty, in the reign of the Conqueror. The siege then carried on was, however, brought to an abrupt conclusion by the perfidy of a mouk, who yielded up the place upon condition of succeeding to the Abbacy. He gained his point, and was very properly executed as a traitor. In 1469, the Abbey was again visited by royalty, but on this occasion the visit was a friendly one, and a very showy equestrian procession repaired hither from Norwich, for the purpose of presenting a petition to the King's mother. In the reign of Edward IV., the parsimonious administration of the revenues of this Abbey gave rise to the perpetration of some doggref, which is preserved as a literary curiosity.

At the period of the Dissolution, the revenues of the Abbey are stated by Speed to have been £677 9s 8d. One Bishop Rugge exchanged these for those of Norwich, but binding himself at the same time to maintain the prior and twelve monks, he found himself unable to do vo, and resigned, upon an annual pension of 200 marks. A contemporary versifier has thus commented on the circumstance:—

"Poor Will, thou rugged art and ragged all,
Thy Abbey cannot bless thee in such fame;
To keep a palace fair, and stately hall,
When gone is thence what should maintain the same.
First pay thy debts, and hence return to cell,
And pray the blessed saint whom thou dost serve,
That others may maintain the palace well—
For if thou stay'st, we all are like to starve."

ST. BENE'T'S ABBRY.

It is worthy of remark that the Abbey of St. Bene't's is the only one in England which can still boast of an abbot, and a mitred abbot—the Bishop of Norwich taking his seat in the House of Lords as Abbot of St. Bene't's.

All that now remains of this once magnificent edifice is the galeway, shown above, upon the walls of which a draining-mill has been erected. The ground-plan of the building and its appurtenances may, however, still be traced, and a melancholy contrast drawn, by the help of imagination, between its past grandeur and its present desolation.

MORE POLKAS! Lanner's John Bull Polka. Arranged for the Pianoforte. By Augustus Mevrs. R. Cocks and Co. Cleverly arranged, but time thrown away. We are heartily sick of these saltatory barbarisms.

CLARE'S PSALMODY. Parts I to VI. Cocks and Co.
This collection of Psalms, Hymns, Chants, &c., contains many beautiful melodies, adapted to the purpose professed by the author or editor, Mr. Clare, in a very happy manner. But still there is a monotony about it which would satiate and fatigue the most devoted psalmodist. Moreover, we do not like to see melodies detorted from their original purposes, even to make psalm tunes of them; and, again, why should not rhythm be attended to in their arrangement for the conventicle as well as for any other locality. The frequent occurrence of the horrid, expletive ninth bar is intolerable. To introduce rounds into psalmody is bad taste. The canon of "Non nobis," by Byrd, is not in the fifth, but in the fourth and eighth below. Mr. Clare's canon, "Non nobis," after the other's, was a bold attempt; but he seems to have had Cherubini's "Perfida Clori" more in view than the immortal production of old Tallis's pupil. On the cover of this publication it is stated to be "complete in three parts," and yet six have been published. What does this mean? On the whole, it is neatly got up, and, no doubt, will prove a favourite with those whose taste inclines them to the style of music contained in its numbers. Chacun à son goût.

Jellien's Concerts.—Not content with the Procrustean task of making English, Irish, and Scotch airs fit the measure of quadrille, whether they would or not, M. Jullien has turned the principal airs of the Principality into most amusing distortions. The set commenced very appropriately with the bold air "The Rising of the Sun," which was admirably instrumented and performed. Mr. Roberts, the Cambrian minstrel, of whom some time ago we gave a portrait, next followed, and executed some variations on the air of "Sweet Richard," which excited universal applause. The various solos by Barret, Lazarus, Baumann, and Kænig, were given in their usual delicious and finished style. The tout ensemble produced a splendid effect.

CURIOUS LEADEN COFFIN.

CURIOUS LEADEN COFFIN.

This interesting relic was lately found by some workmen in the employment of Mr. Forster, of Bow, while excavating near the Old Ford, at Stratford. It is preserved at the Bombay Grab, at Bow, for the inspection of the antiquary, and such persons as cherish respect for objects which throw a light upon the customs of other days; whilst it presents a rare example of ancient art, illustrative of one of the modes of sepulture in this country. Mr. Forster gave early information of the discovery to the Society of Antiquaries, in consequence of which, Mr. C. R. Smith, accompanied by Mr. Stock, of Poplar, have examined and made drawings of the coffin, which is considered by those gentlemen to be either Romano-British or Saxon. The field in which it was found is near the ancient road; on the sides of highways, the Romans and other nations were accustomed to bury their dead, either entire, or in sarcophagi of stone or lead; or in urns, when the bodies were burned.

SCENE FROM "THE CITY MADAM."

Our artist has here portrayed an effective scene from Massinger's play of "The City Madam." lately revived, and performed, with some alterations, at Sadler's Wells Theatre. It is the scene in which Luke, frantic with his vast accession of wealth, revenges himself upon Lady Fragal, her daughters, and servant Millescent, by turning them out of doors. The following is from the text of Massinger:—

Whatever is exorbitant in you
Or in your daughters, and reduce you to
Your natural torms and habits: not in revenge
Of your base usage of me, but to fright
Others by your example: 'tis decreed
You shall serve another, for I will Allow no waiter to you. Out of doors
With these useless drones!

Lady Frugal.

There's no contending.

(They go eff.)

We had occasion, when noticing the production of this play, to speak highly of the acting of Mr. Phelps and Mrs. Warner in the two principal characters. There was a fine contrast between the humility of Luke in the carlier scenes of the play and his terrible wrath upon his elevation. Equally marked was the performance of the lady in her two positions of arrogance and utter dependence. We may honestly recommend our readers to go and witness this representation. sentation.

SCENE FROM THE COMEDY OF "OLD HEADS AND YOUNG HEARTS."

Our illustration represents the fifth act scene, wherein the good Rural is overwhelmed with the reproaches of everybody, just as he imagines he has been serving them. Mr. Parren's transition from the natural to the hysterical laughter, and subsequent weeping, was a wonderful piece of acting, alone sufficient to stamp him a great

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Woodcraft, as our forefathers used to call the occupations of the sportamen, is now busied with its winter work—or, to speak by the letter, afield—hunting. coursing, shooting, and certain river angling, being in full practice. The chare has commenced in earnest in "the provincial counties," as the Melton people designate every hunting district except their own; but Leicestershire being the cream of forn, has not yet put forth its pomp and circumstance. Fashion hath its degrees geometrical and chronometical; thus, your country equive dines at four, your courty gallont at eight. In Finsbury-square winter begins in November, in Park lane in May. The o'd Surrey open their season on Michaelmas Day, the Quorn at Christmas, or thereabouts. Coursers are less fasticious; they ply their trade from Octover to March, and, as the ill-natured assert, at other times beside. The lessh was never our especial sport even with a wild Grampian ditch, and such gaze-hounds feet and true as Caledonia delight to slip on the quarry: but for those who bait the plethoric wretches of Busby-park with luxurious loungers from their parlour freedice, we hold tarring and feathering as too good. A gentleman may fish at Twickenham—if he likes—and according to the keepers of places of entertainment in that region, there is just now "glorious sport to be had by the lovers of the angle," a fact which cannot be doubted, considering the uninterested source from which itemanates. While, however, these are enjoying themselves in their various degrees, we will review the proposals and prospects of summer spotting—the state of the turf, and its contingencies for the coming year.

sidering the uninterested source from which itemanates. While, however, these are enjoying themselves in their various degrees, we will review the proposals and prospects of summer spotting—the state of the turf, and its contingencies for the coming year.

When racing first assumed the character of a national sport, it was solely in the hands of the aristocracy: the mighty of the land alone supported it—and to them was left the direction of all its details. It has grown into a democratical occupation, a popular pastime in the wideat sense of the epithst—and an important agent of a great branch of our rural statistics; it is still wholly under the control of class management: this is wrong, and if suffered to continue, it will be ruinous. With great consideration for the majority of the members of the Jockey Club in their capacity of citizens and gentleme—as a body it is undoubtedly the most wrong-headed socie; in existence. It is no worse, as we conscientiously believe, but the worldi. fast getting into a very different way of thinking, and, we are bound to admit, not without cause. The suppression of the evidence adduced on the Itatan inquiry was a most unwise course. The pretence of expense preventing its being published was quite "too bad," as if any one of the sporting papers, or rather all, would not have been too happy to have done so graits. We cannot truet ourselves to speak of the lackes of Measrs. Crommelin and Ires in not availing themselves of the privilege of clearing the doubts about their connexion with Measrs. Rogers and Braham, by calling for the publication of the evidence. Did the Jockey Club suppose they would? And now, in the face of a rule of the Club, passed in October, 1812, declaring that, for the future, it would never interfere on the subject of bets, we have an announcement that "all presons who do not acttle their accounts atanding in the late Mr. Crockford's book shall be declared of sulters, and treated accordingly." This has been made public through their own the service of the s

PRIZE-FIGHT FOR £20.—On Wednesday, the fight between Jones, of London, and Lawlor, of Paddington, came off at Greenlithe, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators. The men were light weights, and in betting Jones was the favourite at 6 to 4. A ring having been formed, the men entered accompanied by their seconds, and waged war with severity. Jones was ultimately declared the victor.

IRELAND.

The Rent Day.—Sundsy being the day appointed for the collection of the O'Connell tribute at the various Roman Catholic chaptels in Dublin, of course every exertion was used to procure a good amount of rent. At an early hour the tex-collectors took their old stand at the several chaptel doors, armed with formidably large pewter-plates for the reception of the offerings, and furnished with tables and the necessary writing apparatus to record the names of liberal donors. The following is the official return of the sums collected, so far as could be ascertained:—Metropolitan parish, including receipts applicable to the credits of that district and office, £536; Andrew's parish, £437; Michael and John's, £235; Catherine's, £140; Paul's, £100; Michael's, £299; Nicholas, £180; James's, £140; Andrew s, £99; Rathomes, £169; Donny-brook, £73; Kingstoan and adjuncts, £140; Sundries, £255. Several parishes have not yet sent in their returns. The aggregate will probably be between £3000 and £4000. The returns from the provincial towns, up to the pressure period, show the following results:—The amount from Cork cityle £755; Waterford, £400; Drogheda, £210; Brifast, £200; Carrick-on-Sun; £182; Navan, £90; Thurles, £90; Ennicorthy, £90; Kells, £60; Mullingar, £93; Clones, £50; Caher, £64; Kilguade, £40; Kerns, £33; Dunbyne, £30.

The Repeal Association.—The weekly meeting on Monday last was very thinly attended. The only circumstance worth notice was the reading of a letter from Mr. O'Connell in his letter expressed his decided opposition to the plan, which he said, in his opinion, did not contain one single principle or matter of detail which ought or could be adopted by the Irish people in their noble struggle for the restoration of Irish nationality. Mr. O'Connell in his letter proceeds to say, "I may be greatly mistaken, but as far as I can form a hasty opinion, Mr. Crawford's plan seems to me to be an elaborate scheme to make matters worse than they are at present, and to reduce Ireland from a nominal equality with Englan Manily example he has given of laying his plan boldly and in detail before the Irish public." The rentfor the week was announced to be £337.

ATTEMPTED CAPTURE OF GAMBLERS.—Considerable commotion was caused on Wednesday evening by an attempted capture of gamblers in the neighbourhood of Leicester-aquare by the police, under the direction of the superintendent of the C division of police. To effect an entry into those dens of infamy, the police have generally to resort to stratagem, in order to prevent an alarm being given; but, although their plans are usually well organised, they were not successful on this occasion in effecting their object, for before the caption and breaking into the establishment could be effected, the whole of the inmates succeeded in making their escape. The house in question adjoins Mr. Burford's Panorama, in Leicester-square, and it appears that the gamblers having by some means received intimation of the intended visit, lost no time in beating a retreat by taking to the roofs of the adjoining house, from which they rushed into the lower apartments, to the great terror of the occupants, and gained the open street. One of the fellows had a narrow escape, by dropping on to the skylight of the Panorams, but fortunately he did not sall through, otherwise he would, probably, have been hilled on the spot; as it was, he broke several squares of glasa, and did considerable damage. He then clambered up the circular roof of the building, and jumped into the window of the adjoining house, which was open at the time, and ran down the stairs into the shop (a bonnet establishment), where he encountered three young women, who demanded his business, and by what means he entered the premises. The man offered a sum of money if they would allow him to escape, but seeing a crowd collecting in the street, he suddenly pushed them on one side and got clear off by taking to his heels and running at his utmost speed down Bear-atreet.

ICHFLET'S HISTORY of FRANCE. TRANSLATED by G. H. SMITH, F.G.S., with Notes, &c. PART I. Comprising the RACES and the PROVINCES of FRANCE.

"Michelt's History has only to be translated to become one of the most popular books ever published. The author is a man of the highest genius; his erudition is wonderful, and he is at once philosophic and dramate, uniting the severest judgment to the most facile and delicate imagination. His history is thus not only a succession of faithful pictures but a series of the profoundest deductions. The modern French School of History, comprising as it does, amongst many illustrious names, those of Thura, Guizot, and Thierry, is deservedly actionweledged as the first in Europe, and at the head of it we should certainly place Monsieur Michelet."—Monthly Magazine.

DPENING of the NEW ROYAL EXCHANGE.—Future English Historians have a fine field for elegant narration in recording the gorgeous spectacle of Queen Victoria opening the New Royal Exchange. The tens of thousands who witnessed this ever memorable event, when they beheld their Queen, it was as if the very windows spoke; such eager looks, such vivid, sparking, animated eyes, gasing with rapture on the glorious scenel while the all-attractive charms of the fair actreases shone resplendent in their power, and the white and swanlite neck, the rich, Juzuriant tress, and the pearly set of teeth, formed admirable trophies of the Inestimable Qualities of ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL, and ROWLAND'S ODONTO. The august patronage conceded by our gracious Queen, and the several Rovereigns of Europe, together with the beauties which adorn the circles of princely and regal magnificence; and the confirmation, by experience, of the intalible efficacy of these creative, renovative Specifics, have characterised them with perietion, and given them a celebrity unparalleled. They have proved the theme of the poet; they are everbrated in the periodical literature of the whole civilised world; the lays of Byron, and the voice of the universal press, have proclaimed the incomparable virtues of the "Oil Macassar," and of its accompanying preparation.— Evening Paper.

ECLIPSE OF THE MOON ON SUNDAY, NOV. 24, 1844.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE MOON.

On Sunday next, the 24th of November, a great, total, and, we hope, visible Eclipse of the Moon will take place; and it will occur, too, at an hour when most families may watch its progress without inconvenience. Instead, however, of waiting until this phenomenon shall have passed, it will be more interesting to give, prospectively, an illustration of its most striking appearances.

The second engraving shows a section across the shadow of the Earth, with the penumbra, at the orbit of the Moon, drawn in true proportions, as it will be at the time the Moon will pass through it, and, consequently, be eclipsed.

The horizontal line A. B. represents the Ecliptic, or level of the orbit of the Earth, supposed to be extended infinitely as a datum plane; and along which the centre, or axis of the Earth's shadow, moves from right to left.

The line C. D. represents the orbit of the Moon, which is inclined to that of the Earth; the motion of the Moon beingfrom right to left.

The dark circle is a section across the shadow of the Earth, and the outer circle shows the limit of the penumbra at the Moon's orbit.

Now an Eclipse of the Moon can only occur when she is near that part of her orbit which intersects the Ecliptic, and when that part happens to be near the shadow; such was the case in May last, and will be again on Sunday next. In May, the Moon, during the Eclipse, was south, or below the Ecliptic; but, at the time of the next Eclipse, she will be north, at about the same distance, or latitude, above the Ecliptic.

The small circle on the right shows the place of the Moon at the moment of the first contact with the shadow, at 9h, 49m. 36s.; hence, the shadow will first be seen on the left side of the Moon, rather towards the lower part.

The third circle on the left shows the advanced position of the Moon at 18h. 39m. 24s., the moment at which she will be clear from the shadow; hence the shadow will appear to go off the Moon on the right hand, towards the lower part.

The small circle in the molidle shows the exact

But it may be asked why the Moon on the left in the diagram is not shown in contact with the shadow, as it is intended to show its true place at that moment? It must, however, be recollected that while the Moon advances in her orbit, the Earth, with her shadow, also advances in hers; and that, though they go the same way, they move at different rates. The reader will thus imagine that while the Moon will go from the first to the last position, as shown, the Earth's shadow will travel just so far as to be in contact with the Moon, that being the moment when they separate.

The first engraving represents successive periods in the advance and retreat of the shadow.

The Eclipse, commencing at Greenwich at 10 minutes before 10 o'clock at night, Fig 1 shows its appearance at 4 minutes past 10; Fig 2, at 17 minutes past 10; Fig 3, at 30 minutes past 10; Fig 4, at 44 minutes past 10. Fig 5 exhibits the aspect of the Moon, during the time of the total Eclipse, when the Moon will appear of a dull red colour, which will be from 58 minutes past 10 until 31 minutes past 12. Fig 6, the appearance of the Moon at 15 minutes before 1 o'clock on Monday morning; Fig 7, at 2 minutes before 1; Fig 8, at 11 minutes past 1; Fig 9 at 25 minutes past 1.—S.B.H. with additions by S.S.

A NOVEMBER FOG IN LONDON. TIME, THUESDAY AFTERNOON LAST. SCENE, TEMPLE BAE.

Did'st note the day? 'Twas Thursday by the week, And of November's dreary month near end, (Though bootless seem'd all calendar account, Heav'n look'd so out of keeping with all seasons) How darkness spread above—around—o'er all Our visible horizon. One might deem Innumerable chimnies' sooty vapours And countless myriad-breathings of humanity, And smoke of maoy battles upward roll'd, And hundreds of steam navies' varied belchings, And every dank, terraqueous exhalation
This planet could give birth to—wove together, In the vast universal loom of space,
To make a sombre shroud for this fair world.

To make a sombre shroud for this fair world.

And flick'ring flames of weak, unwonted gas, Mixing night's semblance with the noontide's business, Gleam'd gloomily athwart the crowded ways, Lighting the busy sons of Toil and Care, As on they plodded, all in search of wealth Or competence, or that small hard-won pittance Too often sought in vain by o'er-worked want Or gaunt necessity. Still were essayed All this life's avocations as they might: Unheeded still prevailed, the darkness visible. As glibly glided grandeur's gilded wheels, Guided by flashing globes' prismatic gleams. Commerce her sails shook out, and plied her cars With lanthorns Isah'd to yard-arm, mast, and bow; And bustling Traffic in her noisy marts, By torchlight traded, self-engross'd as ever, Within her always dimly-lighted halls, Now doubly, trebly darkened, Justice sate, And by the taper's beams dispensed her rescripts. But ever and anon the ochreish atmosphere Would for a moment briefly lighten up With a faint sickly hue, as if the throes Of an expiring sun were working through it In intermittent gleams—whose vital struggles, By the dense circumambient opaque Together quenching light and life, were smother'd: And thus again deeper cimmerian darkness Eaveloped alt things with a power renewed.

The dismal day crept on; noon followed morn, Evening succeeded noon, and drillight as me.

The dismal day crept on; noon followed morn, The dismal day crept on; noon followed morn,
Evening succeeded noon, and twilight came,
And melted into night;—yet no one marked
The intervening snades that shew their progress;
'Twas Morn—Noon—Evening—Twilight—Night—all blent
Into an unknown quantity's proportion
Of Nature's Subdivision of Old Time;
An undistinguishable Unit Day
Merced in Exemptics all countless Sure Merged in Eternity's all countless Sum.

Methought at that dull moment in the Town, Methought at that dull moment in the Town, It was a Lite, aye, more than passing sweet, For those whose happy lot was cast amid The pure clear air, and sunny azure skies Of Rural Scenes; whose wilful wand'rings were Through pleasant fields begirt by lucid streams; Inhaling all the thousand od'rous breaths Of fraggant abruha and flowers wildly growing. Of fragrant shrubs and flowers wildly growing:
Whose only shadow was a fleeting cloud,
Or the umbrageous foliage of the groves:
And who coul i watch the variegated woods
Their Autumn clothing gradually doff, Ere the departing year prepared to shed The Winter's hoary honours thick upon them? Such simple, natural, unsophisticated Innocent joys as these, are not, alas! For men who dwell in busy, smoky, London,

DENSE FOG IN THE METROPOLIS.

DENSE FOG IN THE METROPOLIS.

November had almost passed away, and people began to think that in these times of innovation, there had been a change in this respect. On Thursday afternoon, however, this unwelcome visitant presented the compliments of the season in "form so palpable," that we believe the often quoted person, the "Oldest Inhabitant," never saw anything so dense. To say that darkness was visible would be to give but a faint idea of the aspect of things about seven o'clock. It was literally pitch dark, and therefore numbers of persons in all directions very appropriately lighted torches. In Fleet-street and the Strand, and the public thoroughfares, there was "confusion worse confounded." The omnibuses and other vehicles were obliged to proceed at a creeping pace, and foot-passengers, particularly fimid ones, were detained some time at the crossings. Even in well-lighted streets, persons lost their way, for it was utterly impossible to see a yard in advance, and the gas-lights were totally eclipsed. In fact locomotion was almost impossible. Most of the omnibuses and cabs had torches, and the old-fashioned cry of "light, your honour" resounded at almost every step, men and boys having sallied forth in a strong force to try and earn an honest penny by endeavouring to counteract the effects of the fog. Happily no accident occurred, so far as we could learn, but it is long since there has been such a dangerous evening for travelling.

SCOTLAND.

INTRODUCTION.

The population of Scotland has been pretty accurately ascertained at different periods. In 1371, and in 1707 (the period of the Union), it was estimated by the late George Chalmers, author of "Caledonia;" by Dr. Webster in 1755; and by Sir John Sinclair in 1715, and in 1801 by the Government Census—since continued decennially.

The following table shows the population at each period:-

	POP.		POP.
1371		1801	 1,599,068
1707			1,805,688
1755			2,093,456
· 1791	1,514,999	1831	 2,365,114
		1841	 2.620.184

Mr. M'Culloch states that "the progress of population in Scotland has been less than its progress during the same period in England and Ireland; while there are good grounds for thinking that the wealth of Scotland has increased more rapidly than that of either of these two countries. This desirable result seems to have been owing principally to the consolidation of small farms in the low country, the introduction of sheep-farming into the Highlands, and the obstacles imposed by the law of Scotland as to leases, and the operation of the poor laws, against the subdivision of land and the building of superfluous cottages. These circumstances, combined with the moral and religious habits of the people, and the general diffusion of education, have caused marriages to be deferred to a later period than in other parts of the empire, and have also led to a very extensive emigration."

The progress of improvement was much accelerated by the publication of the Statistical Account of Scotland towards the close of the last century; a lasting monument of the intelligence of the contributors, chiefly the clergy, and of the unwearied industry of the compiler, the late Sir John Sinclair.

To Sir John, Scotland is much indebted for his exertions in encouraging the improvement of agriculture, which advanced rapidly towards the close of the last century; and the Lothian husbandry has at length clothed with opulence and renown those fields which were once overgrown with weeds, whilst the application of the produce of the sea coasts has fertilized unprofitable moors, and industry has even extorted the rude subsistence of the mountaineer from the interstices of his rugged rocks. The extension of sheep-farming has clad with flocks lonely moors and forests, whilst the planting of trees, encouraged by the war price of timber, and the improved taste of the people, has been carried on in all parts of the country, and even on islands on which it was supposed that trees would not grow.

The universal diffusion of improvement throughout Sc

The universal diffusion of improvement throughout Scotland, as in most countries, dates principally from the introduction or extension of roads. Early in the present century, roads, the cost of which has been divided equally between government and the proprietors through whose estates they pass, have been extended to the Pentland Frith, and to the western extremity of the Isle of Skye, conveying the cattle of Sutherlandshire and the other North Highlands, to the rich pastures and productive markets of England.

The Fisheries have proportionably thriven, and have been established where they were before unknown on the northern coasts of Scotland.

Ished where they were before unknown on the northern coasts of Scotland.

Education, formerly confined chiefly to the Lowlands and central Highlands, has been extended by the Gaelic School Society, and the schools formed by the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, to the Hebrides, Orkney, and Shetland, whilst the Parliamentary grant for the erection of churches in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland, has poured back on many a benighted district that light which, according to history, originally emanated from the sanctuaries of Iona and Oronsay.

To the full development of the resources of Scotland the discovery of steam has supplied a main stimulant. To its gigantic power the physical obstacles to communication and intercourse have in a great measure yielded.

When Dr. Johnson visited Scotland in 1773 the only Hotel in Edinburgh was the Inn in the Grassmarket, the present resort of carriers. Of the progress of improvement about this period, a curious and instructive record, from which the following passages are extracted, will be found in "Creech's Edinburgh Fugitive Pieces," and instructive record, from which the following passages are extracted, will be found in "Creech's Edinburgh Fugitive Pieces," first published in 1791, and reprinted in 1815:—

"In 1763 Edinburgh was almost entirely confined within the city walls. The suburbs were of small extent.

"In 1763 People of quality and fashion lived in houses which, in 1783, were inhabited by tradesmen, or by people in humble and ordinary life. The Lord Justice Clerk Tinwald's house was possessed by a French teacher—Lord President Craigie's house by a rouping-wife, or saleswoman of old furniture—and Lord Drummore's house was left by a chairman for want of accommodation.

"In 1783 A communication (towards the castle) between the Old and the New Town was begun by means of an immense mound of earth, above 800 feet in length, across a deep morass, and made passable for carriages in three years. Whilst the mound was forming it sunk, at different periods, above 80 feet on the west side, and was again filled up. Eighteen hundred cart-loads of earth, from the foundations of the houses then digging in the New Town, were (upon an average) laid upon this mound every day. This is a work unrivalled by any but Alexander the Great's at Tyre.

"In 1763 The revenue of the post-office of Edinburgh was £11,942 per annum.

"In 1783 The same revenue was upwards of £40.000, and is since per annum.

"In 1783 The same revenue was upwards of £40,000, and is since much increased. A curious fact may be here noticed. In 1298 prince, and Sir Robert Sinclair, of Stevenson, had a grant from King Williams of the whole revenue of the post-office of Scotland, with a pension of provement.

£300 per annum, to keep up the post. Sir Robert, after deliberation gave up the grant, as thinking it disadvantageous.

"In 1763 There were two stage-coaches, with three horses, a coachman, and postilion to each coach, which went to the port of Leith (a mile and a half distant) every hour, from eight in the morning till eight at night, and consumed a full hour upon the road. There were no other stage-coaches in Scotland except one which set out once a month for London, and it was from twelve to sixteen days upon the journey.

no other stage: coaches in Scotland except one which set out once a month for London, and it was from twelve to sixteen days upon the journey.

"In 1783 There were five or six stage-coaches to Leith, every half hour, which ran the distance in fifteen minutes. Dunn, who opened the magnificent hotels in the New Town, was the first person who attempted a stage-coach to Dalkeith, n village six miles distant. There are now stage-coaches, flies, and diligences to every considerable town in Scotland, and to many of them two, three, four, and ive: to London there were no less than sixty stage-coaches monthly, or fifteen every week, and they reached the capital in four days; and, in 1786, two of these stage-coaches (which set out daily) reached London in sixty hours by the same road that required twelve or sixteen days for the established coach in 1763.

"In 1763 The hackney-coaches in Edinburgh were few in number, and perhaps the worst of the kind in Britain.

"In 1783 The number of hackney-coaches was more than tripled, and they were the handsomest carriages, and had the best horses of any without exception, in Europe. In 1790 many elegant hackney-chariots were added.

"In 1763 Literary property, or authors acquiring money by their writings, was hardly known in Scotland. David Hume and Dr. Robertson had indeed, a very few years before, sold some of their works, the one, a part of the "History of Britain," for £200; the other, the "History of Scotland," for £600; each two vols, quarto.

"In 1783 The value of literary property was carried higher by the Scots than ever was known among any people. David Hume received £5,000 for the remainder of his "History of Britain;" and Dr. Robertson, for his second work, received £4,500.

"In 1790 There were four established newspapers; and, in 1792, six newspapers.

"In 1763 There were 396 four-wheeled carriages entered to pay duty, and 462 two-wheeled carriages.

"In 1790 There were 1427 four-wheeled carriages entered to pay duty, and 462 two-wheeled: and of wains and carts 6,450.

"In 1763 Few coaches or chaises were made in Edinburgh. The nobility and gentry, in general, brought their carriages from London; and Paris was reckoned the place in Europe where the most elegant carriages were constructed.

"In 1783 Coaches and chaises were constructed as elegantly in Edinburgh as anywhere in Europe; and, it may be added, stronger and cheaper. Many were yearly exported to Petersburgh, and the cities on the Baltic; and there was, in 1783, an order from Paris to a coachmaker in Edinburgh, for 1,000 crane-necked carriages, to be executed in three years. This trade has since greatly increased.

"In 1763 The profession of a haberdasher (which includes many trades, the mercer, the milliner, the linen-draper, the hatter, the hosier, the glover, and many others) was nearly the most common in town; and they have since multiplied greatly.

"In 1763 There was no such profession known as a perfumer: barbers and wig-makers were numerous, and were in the order of decent burgesses: hairdressers were few, and hardly permitted to dress hair on Sundays; and many of them voluntarily declined it.

"In 1763 There was no such profession known as a perfumer: both as regards Scotland and England. "In 1763, and for some years after, There was one ship that made an annual voyage to St. Petersburgh, and never brought tallow if any other cargo offered. Three tons of tallow were imported into Leith in 1763, which came from Newcastle.

"In 1783 The ships from Leith and the Firth of Forth to the Baltic amounted to some hundreds. They made two voyages in the year, and sometimes three. In 1786 above 2,500 tons of tallow were imported directly from the Baltic into Leith. The importation of Baltic goods into Leith is surpassed by only one, or at most two ports in Britain.

"In 1763 A stranger coming to Edinburgh was obliged to put up at a dirty uncomfortable inn, or to remove to private lodgings. There was no such place as an hotel; the word indeed was not known, or was only intelligible to persons acquainted with the French.

"In 1783 A stranger might have been accommodated not only comfortably but most elegantly at many public hotels; and the person who, in 1763, was obliged to put up with accommodation little better than that of a waggoner or carrier, may now be lodged like a prince, and command every luxury of life."

The other principal towns of Scotland shared in the spreading improvement.

The altered proportion in 1841 which the Agricultural bears to the Commercial and Manufacturing classes for Great Britain generally, will at first perhaps excite surprise. It must, however, be observed that these comparative statements refer, for the years 1841, 21, and 31, to families who were chiefly employed in these occupations; and for 1841, to the number of persons actually employed in them, the Census returns recently published not giving the occupations as formerly, by families, but by persons. The increase of the population generally in the agricultural counties is very small, while in the manufacturing and mining districts, the increase greatly exceeds the average for Great Britain.

In our introduction to Ireland, page 12, we have given the number in every hundred families employed in agriculture and manufactures, and it will be observed, by a reference to that table, that three times the number are employed in agriculture in Ireland, as compared with Great Britain, and only about half the number are engaged in manufactures.

Great Britain, and only about half the number are engaged in manufactures.

The alphabetical list of the occupations of persons in Great Britain and Ireland, of each sex, distinguishing Ireland, England and Wales (including the Islands in the British Seas), and Scotland, is given at pages 12, 13, and 14. These tables are unquestionably the most curious and instructive documents which have ever been presented to Parliament, showing, as they do, the minute details of the occupations of all classes, and opening up a field of speculation and thought to the philanthropist and the statesman. The total number of agricultural labourers in Great Britain of both sexes is 1,138,563, being the largest number returned under any one head, excepting domestic servants, who amount to 1,165,233. Of tradesmen and handicraftsmen, by far the largest number are included under the head of boot and shoemakers, amounting in the whole to 214,780.

shoemakers, amounting in the whole to 214,780.

EDUCATION.

Of no part of the institutions of his country has a Scotsman so much cause to be proud as of those connected with Education. By an act passed in the first Parliament of William and Mary, it was enacted—"That there be a school and school-masterin every paroch, his fee not under 100 merks, nor above 200." This provision for schools was attended with the best effects, and civilization and knowledge were happily extended over the whole country. The depreciation of money, however, rendered this salary inadequate to the purpose; and in 1803, the Legislature augmented the salary to 300 merks the lowest, and 400 the highest; together with a house and a quarter of an acre of ground. It may with truth be said of the schoolmasters of Scotland, that there is no class of men of so much utility kept at so small a charge to the country; and we are happy to observe that the attention of the Government has been called to the very inadequate provision still made for them, and that there is every prospect of its being increased in the next session of Parliament. We may here state that the Parochial School-masters have been, since 1801, the persons employed to take the Government Census, and that their task has been always accomplished in an able and satisfactory manner. We trust that in future Censuses the Statistics of Education will be given, the want of which is a serious defect in the present Returns both as regards Scotland and England. For Ireland on this subject the returns are very copious, as will be seen by reference to the table given in page 12.

Col. 1 — Includes the number of permanent poor, regularly on the roll of paupers as legally entitled to, and receiving constant parochal relief. The numbers included in this column as "on the books of the Kirk Session," frequently show merely the leads of families; while the sum which thus appears as paid to one pauper may; in the case of a married man, with a family, in reality have to be participated in by his wife and children, whose names do not appear on the books.

Col. 2.—A legal assessment is not laid upon the heritors exclusively, but it is imposed, according to the proclamation of the Privy Council of Scotland, dated 11th August, 1692, the one-half upon the householders of the parish. In the great majority of counties a legal assessment is altogether unknown; and in only two or three counties is it wholly in operation.

Col. 3.—Voluntary Assessments are in more general operation than legal assessment. When the whole heritors refuse to contribute equally, recourse is then had to a legal assessment, which, it is now apparent is gradually becoming more common throughout Scotland.

Col. 4.—In the greater number of parishes the chief fund for the support of the poor is derived from the collections made at the church door.

Col. 5.—The sums included in this column consist of the interest of money and rent of lands mortified or bequeathed for the relief of the poor, of donations, legacies, dues on proclamations of marriages, hearses and mortcloths used at funerals. and other small sums.

IRELAND.

INTRODUCTION.

IN 1841, a Royal Commission, under the Act 3 and 4 Victoria, cap. 100, was issued to William Tighe Hamilton, Esq., Henry J. Browning, Esq., and Captain T. A. Larcom, R. E., to take the Census of Ireland for that year. The Act required a Return of the Age, Sex, Occupation, and Place of Nativity of every person in Ireland, on the night of Sunday, the 6th of June, and also of every House, distinguishing the number inhabited, uninhabited, and building. The Commissioners, conceiving that the Census ought to be a social survey, and not a mere enumeration, thought it advisable to extend the scope of their inquiries to such points connected with the main objects as would throw light on the general condition of the community.

The first step taken by the Commissioners was to procure from the Ordnance Survey Department, maps of every barony in Ireland, exhibiting the boundaries and details of the parishes and townlands, with classified lists of their sub-divisions. These were distributed among the officers and head-officers of the constabulary, who were employed in the enumeration. They were also supplied with forms of a return to be delivered to the head of each family, and to be filled up by him with the details of the information required by the Act. Another form of return was supplied to the enumerator, which he was to fill up from his own observation. The distinction between these two returns was, that the statements of all facts of a personal nature should be made by the heads of families, while those that could be ascertained by mere observation were left to the enumerator.

could be ascertained by mere observation were left to the enumerator. Previously to 1800, the numbers of the people had been estimated solely by conjectural calculations, made by individuals from their own resources, and on their own responsibility. The first Parliamentary enumeration of the people of Great Britain was taken in 1801: and the process has since been repeated decennially. The first Census of Ireland was taken in 1811, but was so imperfect that it was not published officially. In 1821 the Census was taken under a new Act and on a new principle, which required an account, not only of the numbers, but of the ages, families, and occupations of the inhabitants, along with which was collected much information as to education and rural economy. The minuteness and precision of the inquiries then made have rendered the returns deduced from them a document of high authority. In 1831 the Census was again taken, but so inaccurately as to render the return of little value. In 1831 this Census was revised, and its results published by the Commissioners of Public Instruction; and in 1841, the Census, the report of which is now betore the public, was taken. The Report, dated August 14th, 1843, contains a mass of valuable information, both as to the land and the people. In the former department are specified the quantity of land with its quality, the number and kinds of trees planted, the number and extent of farms, and the quantity and value of lice stock. In the latter the number of inhabitants, with their sex, age, &c., is given in detail; and from these details the present tables have been compiled.

The number of the inhabitants according to computations made at various times, was in—

From this it appears that whilst the addition to the population from 1821 to 1831 was about 144 per cent., the increase from 1831 to 1841 was only 5½ per cent.

The accuracy of these per centages must, of course, depend upon the relative accuracy of the several Censuses of 1821, 1831, and 1841. One cause for a small reduction in comparing the Census of 1841 with those that preceded it, arises from the army serving in Ireland in that year, with their wives and families, having been omitted, as they do not strictly belong to the population of the country, and as their movements introduce changes in the apparent numbers which frequently prove fatal to an investigation into the increase or decrease of the people of a town occupied as a military station.

With respect to the Census of 1831, it was taken in different places at different times, extending over a considered that they would be paid—and in many cases were paid—in proportion to the numbers they enumerated, the obvious tendency of which would be to augment the total numbers. It is also to be recollected that the Census of 1821 was the first successful occasion of enumerating the people in Ireland, and that it was probably effected with a less perfect machinery, and in point of numbers was rather below than above the truth. The great cause which has sensibly affected the whole country has been Emigration. It is to be remembered that Ireland is an agricultural country, and devoid of the means of providing employment for its rapidly growing population equally profitable with that afforded by manutacturing countries. A valuable outlet for its excessive numbers is therefore found in the manufactories of England and Scotland, and is no doubt the leading circumstance which enables the population to increase so largely in their manufacturing districts. The total amount of emigration, &c., from Ireland during the period from 1831 to 1841 may be estimated as Jollows:—

Emigration	to the Colonies		. 428,471
Emigration	to Great Britain		101,811
Recruits for	the Army		. 34,090
Recruits for	the East India	Company	. 5,089
	743 4 1		7,77 2 1/01

If, therefore, we add this number to the resident population of 1841, we obtain a total of 8,747,588.

Before this number can be compared with the Census of 1831, we must first deduct the Army serving in Ireland at that time, and its followers, who were then included, making together 29,486 persons.

The comparison between 1831 and 1841 will then stand as follows:—

Population of 1831 according to the Census
Total
Computed Population of 1831
Computed Increase between 1831 and 1841 893,271

Or nearly 12 per cent., which, making due allowance for any defect in 1821, and any excess in 1831, seems to indicate a pretty uniform rate of increase in the resident portion of the population.

rate of increase in the resident portion of the population.

Houses.—Under the head Houses, is given the number Inhabited, Uninhabited, and Building. In addition to this, a further classification of the inhabited houses, in respect to their condition, has been attempted, with the view to correct an error into which the mere number of inhabited houses is calculated to lead the statistical inquirer. The value or condition of a house, as to the accommodation it affords, may be considered to depend mainly on—1st, its extent, as shown by the number of rooms—2nd, its quality, as shown by the number of rooms—2nd, its quality, as shown by the material of its walls and roof. In the lowest, or fourth class, were comprised all mud cabins having only one room—in the third, a better description of cottage, still built of mud, but varying from two to four rooms and windows—in the second a good farm house, or in towns, a house in a small street, having from five to nine rooms and windows—and, in the first, all houses of a better description than the preceding classes.

From the Summary in page 12, it will be seen that the total number of inhabited houses in Ireland in 1841 was 1,323,339, consisting of—

1st class, or go 2nd class, farm 3rd class, mud 4th class, mud	o houses, cottages	&c		40,080 264,184 533,297 491,278
	Total		7	328 830

The total number of houses in Ireland built of mud in 1841 was 1,021,575, the remainder only 304,264, or less than one fourth of the entire number, being built of brick or stone. The increase in the number of houses between 1821 and 1831 was 9.6 per cent., and from 1831 to 1841, 7 per cent. The following table shows the total number of houses in the years 1821, 1831, and 1841:—

HOUSES.	1821.	1831.	1841.
Inhabited	1,142,602	1,249,816	1,328,839
Uninhabited	35,251	40,654	52,208
Building	1,350	15,308	3,313

The number of houses building in 1821, appear to bear a much smaller proportion to the total number than even in 1841, the number building at that period is very small; but there is no reason to suppose that any real pause in building has taken place during the last ten years, or is now taking place. It is evident that if all the houses in some districts were thrown down, and only half the number of moderately good houses erected in their stead, the household accommodation of the people would be improved, although the number of houses would be diminished by one half.

Persons.—The column of persons is subdivided into three, viz.—
Heads of Families and their Children, Visitors, and Servants. The object of the first head is to show the portion of the community living in the highest social position. The principal advantage of the second head, "Visitors," is, that it separates from the first a class which in Ireland is frequently dependent. This class includes all lodgers who board with the family, even when they are permanent residents, and all relatives of more distant kindred than sons or daughters. It must be added, however, that the number of visitors in these returns is considerably increased by the enumeration having been fixed for the night of Sunday, a day peculiarly devoted to social intercourse in Ireland; so that many were absent on that night, who returned to their homes on the following day.

The following table shows the result of this division in 1841:-

,	Males.	Females.	. Total.
Heads of Families & their Children Visitors Servants	465,589	616,586	6,589,098 1,082,175 503,851
Total	4,019,576	4,155,548	8,175,124

The column "Sevrants" is not only valuable as an important element in the condition of a people, but also as an explanation of some circumstances in the respective numbers for which, without this division, it would be difficult to account. Thus the excess in the female over the male population in large towns will appear, from an examination of the tables, to be caused by the preponderance of female servants. The proportion of servants to the general community is also a consideration of much interest, and the greater proportion of this class is usually to be found in those districts which exhibit the highest state of wealth, of house accommodation, and of education.

The numbers for 1841 include all servants residing with the family, whether agricultural or domestic; classes which are separated in the detailed table of occupations, under the respective heads of "Ministering to Food," and "Unclassified." The proportion of male servants to the entire population in 1841 was 1 to 36, and of female servants vants 1 to 29.

FAMILIES.—In 1831 the rule both in Great Britain and Ireland was, that those who used the same kitchen, and boarded together, were to be considered one family; and an individual either occupying a house, or living as a lodger, but not boarding with the family, was considered to be a distinct family. The rule adopted in 1841 was substantially the same, namely, that by a family was to be understood either one individual living independently in a house, or part of a house, on his or her own means of support, or several individual related to each other, with the addition of servants or visitors living together in the same house, or part of a house, upon one common means of support. On this principle the number of families in these returns has been compiled. The following table shows the total numbers at the undernamed periods:—

					of a Family.

Under the head of "Occupations" is given a classification of families as well as of persons. Families are classified, lst, according to their pursuits, and, 2nd, according to their means. Persons are classified as they minister to the various wants of life.

stiled as they minister to the various wants of life.

The first division of families, according to pursuits, is intended to distinguish the number of families supported by agriculture from those supported by manufacture and trade. But it can hardly be deemed a satisfactory division, as agriculture is, in fact, but the manufacture of rural produce; and, according as it receives the improvements which chemistry and physical science are daily bringing to its aid, it comes more and more clearly within that designation. The trades which minister to it, and which depend upon it, will constantly increase; and, besides the numbers that thus tend to amalgamate it with the other class, it must also be considered to embrace all who, by investment or accumulation, depend on those trades all who, by investment or accumulation, depend on those trades all who imperiectly known; indeed, it may be safely averred, that there are comparatively few families who are not in some degree dependent on agriculture, though not making it an occupation for subsistence; so that while it approaches to manufactures on the one hand, manufactures associate more and more with it on the other.

The following table shows the division of families in 1841:—

The classification of families according to means, is founded upon the principle, that of man in his natural state, labour is the only capital, and that however complicated the state of society may become there can be but two other classes—those who by intelligence, other means, become directors of labour—and those who by accumulation, or still higher intelligence, have become the employers of the other classes.

The following are the per centages of the number of families in

	Rural.	Civic.	1
Vested Means, Professions, &c The Direction of Labour Their own Manual Labour	28.3	6,5 50,0 36,4

It will be seen from this that the lowest class is the most numerous in the rural districts, being two-thirds of the community, whilst in the towns the directors of labour generally equal, and, on the whole, exceed the labourers. This arises from the number of artizans, and persons possessing education and skill who labour to some extent, but who still would be inappropriately placed in the lower class.

EDUCATION.—Not the least interesting of the facts which the returns have brought before us, are those which relate to education. In the General Summary, page 11, we have given the number of persons five years of age and upwards, in each country, who can read and write, who can read only, and who can neither read nor write. For the purpose of caving a general view of the degree in which total agnorance of elementary instruction still prevails in the several countries, the following table arranged in the order of their relative education, shows the proportion in every 100 persons who can neither read nor write:—

Occupations of Persons.—The divisions already given have had for their object a classification of the community by families, according to their modes of subsistence or support, and, in earlier days, such a classification may have presented a tolerable view of the productive energy of the country. But, at present, in a large mass of the community, the head of the family is often obliged to call to his aid the labour of its members as contributors to their own support. There are thus not unfrequently different occupations in the same family, and occupations which, in some families, almost always differ from that of its head, because the occupation of a father may be of a nature in which his children cannot assist him. The Commissioners state "that after the fullest consideration, we found no classification of persons less objectionable than one which, reverting to the first elements of society, considered every individual as dependent on the mode in which he could serve his fellows, or, in other words, as he could minister to the physical or moral wants of others. Thus traders in, or manufacturers of, food, minister to hunger—of clothing to nakedness—of lodging, &c., to exposure—and of medicine to sickness."

In the list of Trades, the common alphabetical arrangement has been abandoned, as being of no use, except where it may aid the pursuit of a known term. They are divided in the first instance, as nearly as possible, into groups, according to the relative simplicity of the process performed, placing first, the producer of raw material; and lastly, the distributor or salesman.

RUBAL ECONOMY.—At page 11 we have given tables showing the division of the surface in each province under five heads—Arable, Plantations, Uncultivated, Towns, and Water. The proportions on the entire kingdom are—

Total 100

The total annual value of land in Ireland is estimated at £13,783,967. We have also given the number and extent of Farms and the number and value of Live Stock.

In looking at the number of farms in each province, the greater prevalence of farms under five acres in Connaught and Ulster will prevalence of farms under five acres in connaught and dister will not escape notice.

In farms between five and fifteen acres there are nearly as many Horses as farms, especially in Leinster, of which the most remarkable instance is the county of Wexford, where they exceed the number of farms. In other provinces they are not so disproportionately numerous. But on the whole country they are not less than two to every three farms. In the larger farms, they of course grow more numerous; and in those above thirty acres average more than three to each. It is, however, necessary to observe that the numbers in the table include all horses, whether employed as auxiliaries to production or to luxury. The CATTLE appear about two to each farm, between five and fif-

Sheep, as may be supposed, vary considerably in the small farms; they generally appear two to each, but on the larger farms the numbers vary from 5 to 58 to each farm. The average in Ulster is 5. In Galway it is far above the average, having 82 to each farm.

PIGS are on the whole less numerous than might have been expected. There is nearly one to every farm in the smallest class, and rise to five to each of the largest class.

POULTRY do not, as is commonly supposed, preponderate in the smaller. They increase in the different classes of farms from five to each, in the lowest, up to 8, 15, and 22 to each in the highest.

Asses are most numerous in the larger farms. In those under 30 acres they are 1 to every 10 farms. In those from 5 to 15 acres, about one to 15 farms, and in those above 30 acres, one to every 5 farms. The agriculturalist will not fail to find material for reflection, and an ample field for improvement in many of the facts here classified.

The Report containing the details from which this abstracts is

The Report containing the details from which this abstracts is drawn up, occupies a closely printed folio volume of 890 pages, chiefly in a tabular form. Much has been done to exhibit the present state of the country, of a nature essential to the development of the national capabilities and resources, and the minute and able manner in which the Commissioners have given the results of their inquiry, asserves the highest commendation, the more so, when it is consequently that they were un past for their authous labours.

COUNTRY OF BIRTH of Persons resident in Ireland in 1841.

Of the 21,552 persons born in England, but resident in Ireland, more than 5,000 are children, and 1,891 domestic servants, of whom 1,273 are females. Next in numerical amount are agricultural labourers, being about 800; then artificers, as carpenters, and workers in metal and machinery; then dressmakers and shoemakers; while so large a number as 7,484 are of unspecified occupations. Of the 3,585 born in Scotland, 1,851 are children, and 2,445 of unspecified occupations; 782 are agricultural labourers, or labourers otherwise employed in the production of food; and 445 are domestic servants.

Artificers rank next in order, and shopkeepers number no less than 280. The number having no specified occupation is large, and no doubt consists principally of the children of Irish parents, especially of the independent classes, born during a temporary residence of the latter in England or Scotland, which, if true, goes far to reduce the apparent numbers of English and Scotch living in Ireland.

The want of Registries of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, in Ireland, has been supplied by other means. The number of births for the ten years ending 1841, inclusive, has been ascertained by adding the numbers now alive at every year of age, for the last 10 years, to the number whose ages at death show them to have been born the same year. The following is the number of births from 1832 to 1841:—
